Lawmakers split as House approves death penalty bill

by STEVE BROWN

Area lawmakers split sharply Thursday on the vote reestablishing the death penalty — some hailing it as a "deterrent to wanton crime," while others labeled the measure "barbaric" and "debasing the sanctity of human life."

The bill had bipartisan support and several legislators said they backed the measure, although they were personally opposed to capital punishment.

"My personal conviction is that I am opposed to capital punishment, but the people of Illinois have spoken and they favor the death penalty," said State Rep. Virginia B. Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights.

She said opinion polls show Illinois residents favor the penalty overwhelmingly.

THE VOTE WAS approved in the House, 122-45, but there were signs the bill might face some procedural problems in the State Senate. The upper chamber's rules committee refused to recommend passage of the bill, but the bipartisan sponsors could ask the full Senate to bypass the committee and vote on the bill directly when the Senate reconvenes later this month.

Although the House vote was not close, the Northwest suburbs 15 state representatives split 8-6 with one voting present. State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, cast the "present" vote because he is leaving the legislature to become a judge. Duff and several other newly elected judges in the house did not vote on the bill because of their new positions.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, said he opposed the measure because, " Capital punishment is murder."

"I am for the preservation of the sanctity of human life and let's not debase ourselves by this," Schlickman said.

Another opponent of the measure, state Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, said, "Some day the continued advancement of civilization will make capital punishment a relic of the barbaric past.

"I DO HOPE that in 30 or 50 years, society will regard today's "yes"

Traffic signals high priority for village in '77

Traffic signals will be installed at three intersections in 1977 in the updated capital improvements program for Arlington Heights.

High priority is given to new signals at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and Wilke Road, although they will be temporary. When Wilke Road is widened to four lanes, from Northwest Highway to Central Road, the lights will be replaced.

The Euclid-Wilke project will cost approximately $70,000 because Wilke Road south of the intersection must be widened for a short distance to provide proper signal lanes, village engineers say.

The captial improvements program budget also uses motor fuel tax funds for traffic signals at the intersections of Central Road and Arthur Avenue at an estimated cost of $40,000, and Dunee Road and Kennicott Avenue, at an estimated cost of $100,000 which includes street lighting.

The three traffic signal projects are being designed. Construction is expected in the spring.

RESIDENTS HAVE requested traffic signals for the Wilke-Euclid intersection for several years because of the heavy traffic and high accident rate. The signals are needed at the Dundee-Kennicott intersection because of heavy traffic during rush hours from employes at Shure Bros. and Honeywell, William Bachem of the village's engineering department, said.

The five-year capital improvements program also plans the installation of traffic signals by 1982 at two other intersections: Northwest Hwy. at Dryden Avenue and Arlington Heights Road at University Avenue. The two projects will cost about $190,000.

Traffic and accident rates do not warrant signals at the Arlington Heights Road-University Avenue intersection, but probably will in a few years, Bachem said. Signals will probably be needed at the Northwest Highway-Dryden Avenue intersection because Dryden traffic is expected to increase once the railroad crossing at McKinley Avenue is completed, Bachem said.

School closings last alternative: Dist. 214 chiefs

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

No school closings are planned in High School Dist. 214 despite a projected 22 per cent enrollment decline by the 1983-84 school year, district officials said.

Board of Education Pres. Donald Hoeck said projections show declining enrollment will be a short-term problem requiring a short-term solution.

"Closing a school would probably be the last alternative we would take," he said.

CLOSING OFF wings of different schools or shifting boundaries to balance enrollments for the eight district buildings are more likely, he said.

When the board studied enrollment proejctions in November, 1975 it agreed that it would be 1980 before the district's enrollment drops enough to warrant closing a school. Although the board reviewed criteria that could be used to determine which school would be closed, it did not decide that any schools would be closed.

The pressure to make a decision was eased by projections that high school enrollment will rise again beginning in 1990, board member Eugene Artemenko said. The projections were released by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

"The figures indicate a general trend and whether it will occur here or in southern DuPage County, no one seems to know," Hoeck said. "It would be rather shortsighted, though,

A $1MILLION judgment against him Thursday didn't seem to affect convicted murder conspirator Silas Jayne. Jayne, 68, convicted in 1973 of plotting the 1970 fatal shooting of his brother, George, was brought to Cook County Circuit Court from the Vienna Correctional Center where he is imprisoned. The millionaire horseman was ordered to pay $1 million to his brother's widow, Marion Jayne.

Jayne widow wins damage suit

by TONI GINNETTI

The widow of murdered horseman George Jayne Thursday was awarded $1 million in damages from Jayne's wealthy brother, who had arranged the killing.

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Walter J. Kowalski in a 12-minute bench trial ruled in favor of Marion Jayne, the victim's widow, who had filed a $7 million suit against Silas Jayne after the murder.

The judgment was set by Judge Kowalski after Jayne, who was present during the trial, and his attorney, Robert Chapski, declined to enter any statements.

JAYNE HAD been brought Thursday morning from the Vienna Correctional Center near Vienna, Ill., where he is serving a six-to 20-year sentence for conspiring to commit the Oct. 28, 1970 slaying of his 47-year-old brother.

But Jayne, 68, who arrived with two prison officers an hour before the 11 a.m. trial, did not take the stand.

Marion Jayne, executor of her late husband's estate, gave the only testimony in the brief proceeding in which both sides agreed to waive a jury.

In sometimes tearful testimony, Mrs. Jayne related the scene in her Inverness home Oct. 28, 1970, when gunman Julius Barnes fatally shot George Jayne through a basement window as her husband played bridge with family members gathered to celebrate the birthday of the youngest of her four children, George Jr.

THE JUDGMENT was made only against Silas Jayne, not the two others who took part in the murder plot.

Silas Jayne and Joseph LaPlaca, Silas' former bodyguard and handyman, were convicted in 1973 of conspiring to kill George Jayne. Barnes, the hired gunman, was convicted of

Silas takes decision with a smile

"Of course I've got the money. How does she want it, cash or check?"

And with that, Silas Jayne — the millionaire who plotted the murder of his younger brother and who will spend the better part of his remaining days in prison for it — strode from the courtroom with a smile where a moment before $1 million of his fortune was taken from him.

The proceeding took all of 12 minutes when Circuit Court Judge Walter J. Kowalski simply said the court had decided to grant Jayne's widowed sister-in-law damages she had sought for the slaying of her husband, George Jayne.

THE WORDS HARDLY affected the 68-year-old Jayne. Indeed, the once-renowned horseman displayed nary a trace of concern throughout the testimony of Marion Jayne. She tearfully related to the court the scene in which her 47-year-old husband was gunned down as he sat playing bridge in the basement recreation room of his Inverness home Oct. 28, 1970.

Jayne, clad in a blue-checked flannel shirt, navy blue slacks and leather jacket, leaned back in the chair at the defendant's table, occasionally rocking back and forth, even twiddling his thumbs.

There were a few private moments before the hearing for Jayne to meet with his brother Frank Sr. and

Carter won't meet with steel companies

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter Thursday refused the steel industry's offer to discuss its price increase and said he has done everything he can to prevent the hike.

"He feels any such meeting would be more appropriate and productive after Jan. 20," Jody Powell, press secretary, said at a 60-minute briefing.

Powell also said:

• Although Republican members of Congress were involved in Carter's earlier efforts for a steel price rollback, the Ford White House itself did not participate. Powell retracted his earlier statement that Carter's efforts had White House approval.

• Carter received a call from outgoing Treasury Sec. William Simon telling him of assurances by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev that he would not test the new administration. Powell also said Carter had received similar assurance from another source, but refused to confirm that it came from Averell Harriman, former ambassador to the Soviet Union and a visitor here this week.

• Carter has not made any decision on whether to produce the B-1 bomber and will postpone that question until after he is in the White House. Powell indicated Carter was pleased with a Pentagon decision announced Thursday that will give him more time to deliberate on that issue.

Carter said earlier this week that the 6 per cent increase in the price of steel would have an "unsettling influence on price stability in the nation." Later, Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale said the steel industry was taking advantage of the transition period.

Thomas Graham, president of Jones and Laughlin Steel, proposed coming to Plains to provide personal justification, but Carter turned him down.

POWELL SAID Carter would not make any additional efforts to force a rollback, explaining: "So far as we can tell, we have exhausted all the options available to us."

Powell acknowledged full responsibility for saying incorrectly on television earlier in the day that Ford had approved Carter's statement on the steel increase.

"There was Republcan involvement in our efforts to avoid a price increase," Powell said, "but it was not administration involvement." He identified those involved as Republican

Early mailings again stressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With early Christmas mail volume lagging far below hoped-for levels, the Postal Service Thursday renewed its plea to the public not to delay mailing cards and packages.

Today is the suggested deadline for mailing parcels within the Continental United States. For Christmas cards and other first class mail, the suggested deadline is a week later, Dec. 10.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar issued a personal plea to the public to mail both cards and parcels as early as possible. But he placed most emphasis on parcels.

A prolonged East Coast strike against United Parcel Service, the nation's biggest private parcel delivery firm, adds to the work load of the Postal Service's bulk mail facilities, Bailar said.

"We are concerned that people mailing packages and greetings to friends and relatives may be disappointed if they don't give us every opportunity to manage our workload during a highly unusual situation," Bailar said.

City employes plan negotiation merger

Des Plaines police, fire and public works employe unions Thursday announced they will band together to negotiate future contracts with the city. Representatives of the local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Assn. and the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employes, composed of fire and public works department workers, said they formed a 12-member executive board "for the purpose of unification and coordination within the areas of mutual interest." The three unions, which represent about 75 per cent of the city's 400 workers, will not merge, but the executive board will improve the union's bargaining position when negotiating a new contract with the city, said John Luety, president of the police union. The city's contract with the unions will expire April 30, 1978.

Police shooting called murder try

Investigators for the Schaumburg police have classified the Wednesday night shooting of a Hoffman Estates patrolman as a murder attempt, said a police spokesman. Patrolman Paul Richardson, 26, was grazed in the leg by a bullet fired by an unknown gunman Wednesday around 7:40 p.m. Richardson, on the Hoffman Estates force for three years, was checking outside equipment on his squad car on Penview Lane when the incident occurred. Police investigators have ruled out Richardson's wound as self-inflicted. No motive has been brought forward in the investigation so far, and police have no leads on the gunman's identity.

Woodfield con man nets $2,925

Schaumburg police are seeking a thief who bilked an Elgin man out of $2,925 at the Woodfield Shopping Center. William Nettleton, 37, of Elgin, told police a man who identified himself as John Testa, a Marshall Field & Co. store employe telephoned, offering to sell Nettleton 15 television sets at a reduced price. Nettleton agreed to meet a friend of Testa's outside the Field Store Wednesday afternoon. Police said the accomplice took Nettleton's $2,925 cash, saying he would return. After five hours the thief failed to return and Nettleton called police. Store officials said no one by the name of John Testa works at the store.

Bakers rise to kneaded security

Sixty-three-year-old Steve Giraudo left his heart in San Francisco but brought his mother to Schaumburg to open the Boudin Sour Dough Bakery at the Woodfield Shopping Center.

"Mother" is a 20-pound lump of dough from a previous batch of sourdough mixed at Boudin's Fisherman's Wharf Bakery. Surrounded by tight security, "she" arrived at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport at 1:35 p.m. Thursday.

The co-owner of the oldest sourdough bakery in San Francisco said the starter batch was insured for half a million dollars because "you have to take better care of the 'mother' than your wife."

A DAB OF "mother dough" is needed for each new batch of sourdough bread, Giraudo said. The "mother dough" starts the fermentation process that causes sourdough to rise without yeast.

The Schaumburg bakery will open Saturday, he said, and will produce the only authentic San Francisco sourdough bread baked outside of the City by the Bay.

On arrival at O'Hare Airport, the precious cargo was picked up by Brinks guards for an armored car trip to Woodfield where it will be mixed with dough to be prepared for the first loaves of Schaumburg sourdough.

DURING THE PLANE trip, the dough was cradled in the laps of Steve's son Louis, his 80-year-old partner Gaspar Rivas, and chief baker Alex Jaciw.

The 20-year-old Jaciw will be in charge of the Woodfield bakery operation. Both his father and brother are sourdough bakers in San Francisco.

The Schaumburg sourdough operation was conceived about two years ago when Bud Schwarzbach, president of Famous Industries, Forest Park, was introduced to Boudin's while vacationing in San Francisco.

SCHWARZBACH convinced the elder Giraudo to try producing the delicacy even though bakers claimed it could only be produced in San Francisco because of perfect humidity generated by constant temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees.

During a United Airlines strike last year, Giraudo used bakery facilities at O'Hare and after two days of experimentation produced what he considered a perfect replica of the bread he baked at Fisherman's Wharf.

As a gesture of appreciation to United for the use of their kitchen, loaves of the freshly-baked bread were distributed to passengers aboard the flight from San Francisco to Chicago.

BRINKS GUARDS Frank Loverdi, left, and Phil Rosner gently load sourdough bread starter insured for a half million dollars for an armored car trip from O'Hare Airport to Schaumburg, the last leg of its journey from San Francisco. The mix will be used to produce the first loaves of bread at Boudin's Bakery, expected to open Saturday at Woodfield Shopping Center. The bakery is said to be the only source of authentic sourdough bread being made outside the City by the Bay.

U.S. taxes to offset rise in spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government spending will rise 30 to 40 per cent within the next five years. But federal tax revenues will increase more than twice as fast, producing a budget surplus by 1980 or 1981, a Congressional Budget Office analysis Thursday predicted.

The report said federal spending could rise to nearly $590 billion by 1982, but with the bigger jump in revenues, the potential budget surplus by 1982 would be "quite large, ranging from $82 billion to $126 billion," depending on the economy.

For the immediate future, deputy director Paul O'Neil of the White House Office of Management and Budget told Congress' Joint Economic Committee that projections showed a larger deficit for this fiscal year, somewhere between $55 billion and $60 billion. Slowtr economic recovery than anticipated accounts primarily for the deficit, the office said.

ALICE RIVLIN, director of Congress' budget analysis arm, testified that the shortfall in federal outlays this fiscal year was one of the key factors in the recovery's pause.

"It was roughly $16 billion," she said. "That's very large. It's hard to imagine that it had no impact on the economy."

The study's forecast was based on tax and spending rates remaining at their present levels, with no new government programs being added, and assuming varying rates for inflation, unemployment and the Gross National Product.

DESPITE A RISE in spending, tax revenues are projected to increase by 70 to 85 per cent between fiscal years 1977 and 1982, depending on the assumed rate of economic growth, the report said.

With tax revenues surpassing government expenditures, the budget deficit will become a surplus by fiscal 1980 or 1981, the study said.

Total tax receipts are projected to go from $362.5 billion this fiscal year to $668 billion by fiscal 1982. The report said this would represent a 14 per cent annual increase in federal tax revenues while taxable personal income is expected to rise by only 11 per cent a year.

Based on differing rates of economic growth, the report said projected spending could go from this fiscal year's $413 billion budget to $451 billion next fiscal year and to $586 billion by 1982.

members of Congress.

Powell said Carter had worked "for several days" to get the steel industry to roll back the increase before he made a public statement Monday. There were "at least two separate points of contact" with the industry through intermediaries, said Powell.

CARTER SPENT the day at home and talked by telephone about cabinet nominations. He has scheduled his third formal news conference at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

He will go to Washington next Wednesday for meetings with northeastern-state governors, transition staff, members of Congress and Pentagon officials. He will return to Georgia the following Friday.

Powell confirmed that Carter would nominate Thomas B. Lance, Atlanta banker, probably as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

In keeping with his oftn stated intention of making nominations to "clusters" of related offices, Carter also may announce nominations for treasury secretary, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors and assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

It was learned that A. W. Clausen, 53, a Republican and chairman of the Bank of America, may be nominated to the Treasury.

Area lawmakers split on death penalty bill votes as unthinkable.

State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, said he had opposed the death penalty until the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision.

"I think we have built safeguards into this new law which will ensure even-handed application," Porter said. He said the new law will serve as a deterrent to crime.

"We cannot tolerate the type of wanton murder and crime that occurs today and I think this will help deter some of that," Porter said, adding he found the decision to support the bill "difficult in my own heart and mind."

All of the lawmakers rejected the proposal that members of the General Assembly serve as witnesses to executions. Two attempts were made Wednesday to amend the death penalty legislation to include that provision, but most lawmakers considered the suggestion frivolous.

SEVERAL LEGISLATORS also said capital punishment is an uncorrectable punishment.

"It is an irreversible step, you cannot correct a mistake," said State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe.

If passed by the Illinois Senate later this month, the new law would take effect immediately. It calls for the death penalty for all persons convicted of murdering an on-duty police officer, firefighter or prison guard; death resulting from mass murders, hijackings, contract killings, robbery, rape, arson, burglary, bombing, the taking of indecent liberties with a child, or when present or former judges or state's attorneys are murdered.

Some observers believe renewed interest in the Illinois bill was sparked by the case of Gary Gilmore, the Utah murderer who has demanded his death sentence be carried out. None of the lawmakers, however, raised that case as a reason for their vote.

THE AMERICAN Civil Liberties Union, which opposes capital punishment, disputed the contention capital punishment is a deterrent to crime.

The group noted new FBI statistics show violent crime down 113 per cent in Illinois in 1975 when there was no capital punishment law on the book.

The new law is an attempt to meet the U.S. Supreme Court decision last June which held the death penalty can be imposed only for certain crimes.

Several lawmakers also called for the General Assembly to give attention next year to overhaul other aspects of the criminal justice system.

Legislators vote down pay hike

The Illinois House Thursday failed to approve a package of salary increases for themselves and other state officials.

While the bills technically remain alive, many lawmakers said they saw no way the 40 votes necessary to pass the measures could be found.

The bills, sponsored by State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, would have boosted the annual pay of legislators from $20,000 to $27,500. The governor's salary would have risen from $50,000 to $70,000. Other state officials, judges and key state executives also would have received increases.

Jaffe said the vote did not reflect accurately the mood of the legislature.

Many lawmakers said they opposed the bills because the Illinois General Assembly had voted against pay increases and programs for other state agencies.

Jaffe said he will make another effort to pass the bills when the lawmakers return to Springfield later this month.

murder.

La Placa also is serving a six-to 20-year term in Vienna and Barnes is serving a 25-to 35-year term in another institution.

Mrs. Jayne, under questioning from her attorney, Herbert F. Stride, wept briefly when she testified about the shooting. "He was knocked out of his chair and blood splattered all over," she said.

She told the court her husband's income averaged about $60,000 annually in addition to other investment income.

CHAPSKI DECLINED to make any statements and confirmed Stride's opening remarks that both sides had agreed to a bench trial and to waive calling Silas Jayne to the stand.

After the trial Mrs. Jayne and Stride said they were satisfied with the judgment.

"It's what the lawyers suggested and I hope we get the money," Mrs. Jayne said. "I feel it would be a good investment for the children."

Her four children include Linda Marie Jayne Wright, 28, Patricia, 26, Nancy, 25 and George Jr., 22.

Frank's wife. Jayne waved cheerfully to them as he entered the courtroom, and it could have been just another friendly family greeting except for two plainclothes officers from the Vienna Correctional Center who directed Jayne's moves.

Jayne's attorney, Robert Chapski, told Jayne as they sat waiting for the proceeding to begin that he would not be taking the stand. There really was no need for it, he said, and Jayne agreed.

AND WHEN IT was finished, he rose easily to return to the prison near Downstate Vienna where the temperature was much warmer, he said, and where he spends his 6- to 20-year prison sentence in kitchen duty and occasionally riding a horse.

He turned briefly to talk to the court observers, saying the $1 million judgment against him "doesn't make any difference." He would have lingered had the officers not ushered him out.

He had avoided looking at Marion Jayne the whole time. "I know he should be in jail," she said after he left. "I'd say for the rest of his life."

I'm not a maid, officer reassigned to meters says

• The only policewoman on the Alexandria, La., force of 109 officers sees two things wrong with her reassignment as a meter maid: first, the city spent $2,143 to train her as a youth officer so she could leave the meter beat and then the city removed all of the parking meters. Betty Ambrose, 41, said she was a victim of sex discrimination. She is next in line for promotion to sergeant if she serves as a regular officer, she said.

• World figure skating champion and Olympic gold medalist Dorothy Hamill, suffering from the flu, has temporarily canceled her appearance in the Ice Capades now playing in Seattle.

• William Rickenbacker, son of World War I flying ace Eddie Rickenbacker, was in stable condition Thursday at a Mount Kisco, N.Y., hospital with injuries sustained in the crash of his light plane. Rickenbacker, 48, of Greenwich, Conn., was suffering from head and chest injuries. He was undergoing tests.

• Ira Royer and at least three other New Hampshire residents have another name for New York City — The Rotten Apple. Royer, 54, received a $275 bill from New York for traffic violations last year. He has not driven in New York City in more than 25 years. Royer said, "I've got calls from three different people who have the same problem I have. One guy in Derry got a bill for $500, another in Manchester for $40 and a third in Littleton for $175. I think they're pulling some kind of racket down there.

ONE OF THE most famous scenes in motion picture history showed Jane Russell, right, in low-cut blouse. The scene will be repeated in a CBS-TV movie "Howard, the Amazing Mr. Hughes" to air later this season. Model Marla Carlis, left, will play Miss Russell's role in scenes from the Howard Hughes production "The Outlaw." Hughes designed a special bra for Miss Russell's "Outlaw" scene where she appeared reclining on a haystack.

KATHLEEN BAILLIES, theater and dance student at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, shares billing with six-foot boa constrictor in student production of "Carnival." Kathy plays the role of "Princess Ola the Snakecharmer." She felt panic upon learning the snake in the production would be real . . . but now feels more comfortable. Kathy's fellow actors, however, are keeping their distance while on stage.

IBI ex-directors cleared of charges

A federal judge Thursday acquitted two former directors of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, one of them now a top Chicago police officer, of charges they conspired to conduct illegal wiretaps. U.S. District Court Judge George Leighton said he accepted defense motions for a directed verdict of acquittal because it would be "an injustice" to let the case of deputy police superintendent Mitchell Ware and Richard Gliebe go to the jury. Leighton said "no reasonable mind" could convict them.

Several jurors interviewed after Leighton dismissed them said they would have acquitted the two. Ware and Gliebe were indicted July 27 on one count each of conspiracy to violate federal wiretapping laws between June 1970 and December 1972. Gliebe was chief of the IBI's organized crime division when Ware was superintendent, and became superintendent after Ware resigned in 1971.

Early in the trial, Leighton told attorneys without the jury present that law enforcement officials believed at the time of the alleged conspiracy that wiretaps were a legitimate means of gathering evidence. He said that wiretaps are not inherently evil, but are wrong only because Congress has made them so.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Kadison, chief prosecutor in the case, noted that the government cannot appeal a directed verdict of acquittal. He said he still believed a conspiracy existed, and that he wasn't sure why the acquittal motion was approved.

Plea entered in hostage cases

James Shelton pleaded innocent Thursday to charges he held two women hostage after an unsuccessful attempt to rob a Chicago currency exchange on Chicago's South Side. Shelton, 41, Chicago, entered the plea before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo.

Shelton and Sidney Carver, 50, were indicted Wednesday by a grand jury on charges of attempted murder, aggravated battery, forcible detention, armed robbery and burglary. Carver, who was shot in the hip during the holdup attempt Tuesday, still is hospitalized and has not made a court appearance. Both men were held under $300,000 bond.

Lutheran convention this weekend

A splinter group of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will hold its first convention in Chicago today and Saturday with an announced goal of working toward "Lutheran unity." The Assn. of Evangelical Lutheran Churches will bring together delegates from five regional synods which have been set up as alternatives for "moderates" who feel "evicted" from the Missouri Synod, Larry Neeb, scretary of the organization, said Thursday.

The approximate 400 delegates, scheduled to meet in suburban Rosemont, will spend much of their time on electing a president and establishing bylaws. But Neeb said, "This group will be working for Lutheran unity. It will declare itself in fellowship with other Lutherans, which the Missouri Synod has not done."

Republicans back open primary bill

Three Republican state representatives Thursday announced they filed an "optional open primary bill" for debate next session. The measure, sponsored by State Representatives Celeste Stiehl, Belleville; Everett Steele, Glen Carbon, and State Rep.-elect James Edgar, Charleston, would permit voting in a primary without declaration of party affiliation. Present law requires voters to publicly ask for one or another party's ballot.

Howlett warns to keep old plates

Motorists who put their 1977 license plates on their cars should make certain they destroy or keep the 1976 plates until they expire early next year, Sec. of State Michael Howlett Thursday said. "Every year our office receives numerous complaints from owners who negligently discarded their old plates after installing new ones," Howlett said. "Complaints reach us after the plates fall into the hands of unknown persons who use them illegally."

MICKEY SAAR relaxes in the same corner where he and his late wife, Tuty, were married in 1923. He will retire from 21 years as a village employe Dec. 31, four days before his 77th birthday.

He reaps 21 years of praise

Arlington Heights sweet on meter collector Saar

by NANCY GOTLER

Mickey Saar's friends say he's proof that nice guys don't always finish last.

Just mention Saar's name at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building and a dozen of his friends will offer stories about his good will.

On Dec. 31, four days before his 77th birthday, Saar will end 21 years as chief collector and repairman for the village's parking meters. His friends will be sorry to see him go.

"I'VE KNOWN HIM for 19 years," said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, "and I can't say enough about his integrity.

"Mickey's the kind of individual who never worried about the clock or whether he was going to get paid overtime," Hanson said. "He'd work on a meter on Sunday if he knew there was a problem with it and not tell anybody he did. He'll be extremely hard to replace."

Bill Moylan, who worktd with Saar for nine years in the maintenance department, ran out of laudatory adjectives while describing his friend.

"It only happens once in a lifetime that you get to meet someone like him," he said. "He's a fabulous man. A little love rubs off on anybody who comes in contact with him. He's a beautiful person."

Saar, who moved to Arlington Heights in 1918 when the population was 2,100, still plays golf and often shoots under 100.

HE LOOKS 15 years younger than his age, and Moylan said he can outwork any other employe, no matter what their ages.

Saar began working for the village in 1955 as a school crossing guard for $2 an hour after 22 years as a mechanic at Winkelmann's service station, 310 W. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

He shares his 90-year-old home at 122 S. Evergreen Ave. with a 19-year-old Harper College student, Gary Santos, who dates one of Saar's granddaughters.

Santos pays no rent. Neither do Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deigl, who have lived in a cottage behind Saar's house for 32 years.

Since March, when Deigl suffered a stroke, Saar has not asked for the rent.

"I'M NOT GOING to ask those people to move out," Saar said. "They can live there as long as I'm alive."

Except for two short absences because of accidents years ago, Saar has never missed a day of work because of illness. He has accumulated almost 90 days of sick leave.

Mrs. Deigl said Saar is "the most lovable, likeable person I've ever met. I don't believe he has an enemy on the face of the Earth."

Students can get help in housing

Young adults looking for housing or a roommate to share the rent with may now contact TALKline Regional Youth Services Bureau for referrals in Palatine, Wheeling and Ek Grove townships.

TALKline began the housing referral program Wednesday, after urging and support from social service agencies in the three townships.

"We'll mainly be serving college-age students who do not work fulltime and are going to Harper College," said Beth Christoff, director of the bureau. She said there is a lack of affordable housing for persons in the 18 to 21 age group.

"MANY TIMES people will not rent to persons who are not working fulltime," Ms. Christoff said. "And you can't blame them — they need to be sure they'll get the rent."

Ms. Christoff said the purpose of the housing referral service is twofold. She said TALKline will take information from persons who have the space available, besides providing the phone numbers to young adults seeking housing.

"For example, if someone wanted to move into Palatine, we'd give them maybe three numbers to call," Ms. Christoff said.

She said only first names and phone numbers will be given out by TALKline, so that identies of those with housing will be protected.

THE REFERRAL service will not match roommates, Ms. Christoff said, it only will put young adults in contact with potential roommates.

TALKline will help anyone who needs housing, Ms. Christoff said, but the "target age" is for those 18 to 21.

She said without TALKline young adults have relied on the Harper college bulletin boards, newspaper ads and word of mouth to find an affordable apartment.

TALKline is open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The phone number for housing referrals is the same as the bureau's youth hotline number, 358-8255.

Man sought in bilk traced to Vegas

by DANN GIRE

A Des Plaines cab company owner, accused of bilking Western Union of $400,000 and missing since August, has been traced to Las Vegas.

Richard T. Vana, indicted Sept. 20 for allegedly embezzling $400,000 from the Western Union Telegraph Co. office in Des Plaines in a phony money order scheme, reportedly hocked jewelry in November at a Las Vegas pawn shop.

The owner of three taxi-companies that operate in Des Plaines and Palatine, Vana has been missing since August and is being sought by Cook County Sheriff's police in connection with the money order scheme. Vana's last known address was 966 Howard St., Des Plaines.

Las Vegas police notified Cook County Sheriff's police two weeks ago that a man using Vana's name and address pawned a wristwatch for $30 Nov. 3 and a wedding band for $15 Nov. 4.

"We don't know where he is right now," a Las Vegas police detective told The Herald. "We do know he's been around town and we have a warrant out for his arrest."

LAS VEGAS police regularly check local pawn shops looking for names of wanted suspects. Las Vegas police, however, did not know Vana was wanted in Cook County until last week.

Cook County authorities failed to enter Vana's name in the National Crime Information Center computer, preventing Las Vegas police from knowing Vana is wanted in the Western Union theft.

Vana's name since has been added into the national crime computer.

Lt. Bernard Singer of the Cook County Sheriff's police, Wednesday said, "Vana may or may not be in Las Vegas now. He tends to move around from one place to another."

Singer said if Vana is not caught in Las Vegas "it's just a matter of time before we get him. He knows he's hot. All we need is to have someone stop him for something, even a traffic arrest, and we'll have him."

THE LAS VEGAS incident has ended fears by police that Vana possibly had been the victim of a hired assassin.

Rumors Vana had been killed circulated among police earlier and some undisclosed evidence that a "contract" may have been put out on Vana's life was obtained by police.

Police said they do not believe the rumors are true.

The Sept. 20 indictment charged Vana with stealing more than $400,000 from Western Union between Feb. 13 and Aug. 10 of this year by issuing and cashing false money orders.

Vana was a local Western Union agent operating from the Martin Cab Co., 1501 Miner St., Des Plaines, which also provides service to Palatine. Vana also is owner of the Two-Tone Cab Co. and Jack's Cab Co., both of Des Plaines.

IF CONVICTED, Vana could be sentenced from one to 10 years in prison and fined up to $10,000.

He allegedly cashed the false money orders, filed for transmitting funds from Western Union, and deposited the funds into a bank account to make it look as though he was collecting on other phony orders.

The funds in the account made it appear money had been collected for the orders, which actually never existed.

David Cuprison, spokesman for Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey, said earlier Vana allegedly used the money from the orders to place bets at the Arlington Park Race Track and other area race tracks.

'Nadia' producer seeking asylum

The man who put together a television show about Romania's famed gymnast, Nadia Comaneci, is seeking political asylum in the United States, it was disclosed Thursday. Dumitru Udrescu, 47, Television Romania's chief of the film and documentary section, said he planned to defect before he left his native country to come to the United States and, with American producers, co-edit the show "Nadia — From Romania With Love."

Romanian authorities insisted that an "interpreter" accompany Udrescu on his trip to the United States. The producer called the man "my guardian angel." He slipped away from him in New York City. He then got on a plane for Los Angeles and sought help from the International Rescue Committee in his bid for asylum. Udrescu left an estranged wife in Romania, an 18-year-old daughter, his parents and a brother and sister.

Pessimism over economy

A post-election Harris poll indicates growing pessimism over the nation's economy, and widespread skepticism that President-elect Jimmy Carter would be able to keep his campaign promise of improvement. In a survey of 1,330 adults, 70 per cent said they felt the country is back in the middle of a recession. Only 59 per cent reflected that gloomy view in July.

The poll also indicated belief, by a margin of 45 to 31 per cent, that the recession will last for the next 12 months and 45 per cent felt unemployment in their home areas to be on the upswing. Only 44 per cent said they believed Carter would be able to reduce unemployment from 7.9 to 5 per cent. Thirty-seven per cent expressed doubt.

"There is irony, of course, in these latest results," the Harris organization said. "There is no doubt that in the late stages of the recent presidential campaign, the economic issue worked to Jimmy Carter's advantage and was one of the decisive elements in his victory. "Yet, now that a new administration is coming to power with its announced primary goal of restoring the economic health to the country, the public clearly is in a skeptical mood.

Howe asks: overturn verdict

Congressman Allan Howe, convicted of a minor sex offense which ruined his political career, Thursday asked the federal court to set aside the guilty verdict. Howe, a freshman Democrat defeated Nov. 2 after his conviction for soliciting sex from two police decoy prostitutes, filed an amended petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

The petition asks the U.S. District Court for Utah to overturn the conviction on the basis that Howe's constitutional rights were violated by adverse pretrial publicity. Polls taken before Howe's arrest June 12 in the city's red-light district showed he enjoyed 64-per cent voter preference for a second term. After his second conviction, polls gave the 49-year-old father of five less than 15 per cent.

Chicago-bound train derails

Five cars of an Amtrak train en route to Chicago from Ft. Worth, Tex. derailed Thursday in Irondale, Mo. after colliding with a dump truck. Fifteen persons were injured. The eleven passengers and four crew members were taken to Washington County Hospital in Potosi, according to an Amtrak spokesman. The remainder of the passengers were taken by cab to St. Louis where another train took them to Chicago. The truck driver sustained a slight injury.

The world

Chou's widow endorsed

Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua was fired Thursday and outgoing U.N. Ambassador Huang Hua named to replace him in the first return to constitutional processes in China in 12 years. The ouster of Chiao, who led a Foreign Ministry street march against purged former vice Premier Ten Hsiao-ping, came at a meeting of the Standing Committee of China's National People's Congress.

The committee also endorsed the nomination of Ten Ying-chao, the widow of the late Premier Chou En-lai to be one of its vice chairmen. The committee session was significant because it marked a return by the Chinese goverment to constitutional processes that had been largely ignored for the past dozen years.

Endorsement of Teng Ying-chao's nomination came more than a year after it was proposed by the Communist Party Central Committee and approved by the late party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. "I feel very much honored and moved," Chou's widow told the committee. "But at the same time I find myself in a position in which one's reality is not up to one's fame."

S. Africa arrests blacks

A force of 600 South African police swooped on the black ghetto of Guguletu in armored cars Thursday,sealing off the township and arresting scores of blacks to end three days of arson and rioting. Police said the show of force was aimed at averting a full-scale outbreak of violence in the all-black shantytown outside Cape Town, where police shot and killed two young black demonstrators Wednesday.

They said the growing tension threatened to explode into a repeat of the antigovernment riots in Cape Town last August and September when nearly 100 persons were killed. The Gugletu township, on Cape Town's outskirts away from white suburbs, was surrounded and sealed off mid-morning.

Deck village hall—but without gifts

The Christmas spirit may not be dead, but gift-giving at village hall is.

Or so go the rules, written and unwritten, of villages, townships and special districts in the area.

A Herald survey showed most local governmental bodies prohibit their employes from accepting gifts except for small items such as a bottle of liquor or box of candy.

Written policies distributed to either employes or potential gift-givers are not uncommon. They often lay down, to the letter or dollar amount, exactly what may and may not be accepted.

"WE DON'T accept anything. If anything does come in, it goes right back to the giver," said Allen J. Binder, Hoffman Estates park director, Binder said although there is no formal policy, he has not had to worry because he does not remember an employe receiving a gift.

Elk Grove Village does not prohibit gifts, but requires all gifts or offers worth more than $10 to be reported to Village Mgr. Charles Willis.

Cash, checks, gift certificates and other forms of money however, are not to be accepted, a November 1973 village memo stated.

Nanci L. Vanderweel, Elk Grove Village trustee, said "the gifts have gotten less and less over the years."

The Bank of Elk Grove last year donated money to the Salvation Army on behalf of the village board, she said.

"I prefer a gift such as the donation because the money used for a gift would go to a far greater use," she said.

ELK GROVE Park District does not have a formal policy, but Paul V. Swanson, recreation superintendent, said the practice is not to accept gifts.

Accepting gifts is also frowned on for Des Plaines city employes. "We have no formal policy, nothing in writing where disciplinary action could be taken," City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said.

She said city employes traditionally do not accept gifts.

Palatine Township does not have a written rule prohibiting gifts because "we never felt we needed one," Township Clerk Ruth Ellen Blowney said.

"It's just been one of those things you don't do," she said.

SALT CREEK Rural Park District relies on board of commissioners' pledge to never use the office for personal gain, Director John DeVos said.

"We've had people, out of friendship and kindness, offer to give us a bottle of whiskey or something," DeVos said. "We used to raffle them off, but we thought even that wasn't worth the bad press you might get from it."

Schaumburg Park District Director Paul Derda said their informal policy says that if an employe receives a box of candy or bottle of liquor it should be used by everyone at a staff party.

But other local governmental bodies have more detailed and formal policies. Department heads in Schaumburg receive an annual memo referring them to the village personnel manual, said Fortune Rivkin, secretary to the village manager.

VILLAGE MGR. John E. Coste said the manual prohibits gifts. If a gift is received, it must be reported to him to decide whether it may be kept, he said.

Coste said he has allowed employes to keep "knockwurst-type gifts, but this would not be the case with things like Thunderbirds, TV sets or radios."

Schaumburg's policy manual states reports on gifts must be written, but Rivkin said department heads usually discuss gifts verbally with Coste.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Village Manager George P. Longmeyer said the policy is "we don't accept anything from anybody."

The village recently wrote business associates to explain the policy, Longmeyer said. "The fact that we send the letters out stating what the policy is abrogates a lot of the problem," he said.

Longmeyer said company officials in the past have telephoned to thank the village for the policy information.

A box of candy might be accepted, but larger gifts are returned, he said. When a gift is delivered parcel post, as was a basket of fruit two years ago, it is donated to a social institution like Little City in Palatine.

Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director, said policy states gifts or offers must be reported immediately to an employe's department head.

SMALL GIFTS, such as a bottle of liquor, are allowed, said Thornton, who makes the final decision on what may be kept.

"Every once in a while someone will drop off a bottle of booze at the maintenance center and they'll share it, but that's about it," he said.

Village employes in Arlington Heights are not allowed to accept anything. When items are sent by mail or messengers, they are recorded and returned by police officers.

Policy for the Palatine Park District states employes and commissioners may not accept gifts with a value more than $5, said Fred Hall, park district director.

WHEN SUCH A gift is received, it must be reported to Hall, he said. "We can take things as long as they are under $5, but then they have to tell me about it."

A written policy memo was distributed this year in Rolling Meadows for the first time, City Manager Charles Green said.

Employes and department heads are not allowed to accept gifts except candy or homemade goods, he said. A similar policy is followed by the police, fire and public works departments.

Robert J. Eppley, Mount Prospect Village Manager, said he sent a letter last year to business associates that stated employes may not accept gifts.

"AS FAR AS I'm concerned, I don't have that problem," he said. "Somebody could be taking all kinds of things at home that I wouldn't know about. But if I found out, I'd probably fire them."

Rolling Meadows Park District has a policy which states an employe may accept a gift if it is approved by Stephen Person, district director.

Persons said he would not approve a gift with high monetary value.

Person said a chemical company representative two years ago offered him a woman's bracelet in an effort to sell his product.

"I threw him out and shortly after that the chemical companies got hit badly by publicity that proved they were bribing officials with gifts," he said. "It stopped after that."

THE VILLAGE OF Palatine is more strict. It rules gifts that are accepted must be valued at less than $1, according to a memo issued by Village Manager Anton H. Harwig to village employes.

Harwig said he has issued such a memo for each of the three years since he became village manager. Village ordinance prohibits elected and appointed officials from accepting gifts worth more than $50.

Two governmental bodies have no policy, formal or otherwise. Kay Wojcik, Schaumburg Township clerk, said the township has no policy because employes do not receive gifts.

Elk Grove Township also does not have a policy. Nita Stamm, of the office, said she and Township Supervisor Richard Hall receive a turkey from a sewer rodding company each year and other small gifts come to the office with thank-you notes.

'Dist. 214 schools to remain open' to sell off a school believing this wouldn't come to pass."

EVEN BY THE most stringent projections, Dist. 214 has nothing to worry about for the next three years, so school closing deliberations temporarily have been shelved to enable the board to address more immediate questions, Artemenko said.

If the board eventually does decide that a school or schools will have to be closed, it won't start with preconceived notions of which schools will be affected, Supt. Edward Gilbert said.

Criteria to be considered would include the school's location; its age, physical condition and adaptability to meet future needs; operating and maintenance costs; the school's market value; and transportation costs, Gilbert said.

Arlington and Forest View high schools in Arington Heights would be the most expensive to upgrade. A citizens' committee last year told the board that Arlington, the oldest school in the district, would need field houses, a new library, a larger theater, major classroom renovations and more land to bring it up to the standard of the newer schools in the district, Gilbert said. The cost would be about $8 million.

THE COMMITTEE said Forest View would need field houses, a swimming pool, a sizable addition and an improved heating and ventilation system, at a total cost of about $3.5 million, he said. The heating and ventilation work, a $.5 million project currently is under way.

While Arlington and Forest View may be costly to upgrade, they are less expensive to operate than the newer, air-conditioned Hersey, Rolling Meadows and Buffalo Grove high schools, Gilbert said.

"Gas and electric bills may skyrocket so much that this could be significant in making a decision about which school to close," he said.

Arlington also comes out ahead when transportation costs are considered. Of the eight schools in the district, it has the smallest percentage of its students bused, Gilbert said.

Forest View has the highest percentage of students bused, but it also is the largest school in the district and the one whose enrollment is expected to decline slowest. Closing Forest View, therefore, would disrupt and divert more students than closing any other school, Gilbert said.

"WE'RE SERVICING people, not mechanical robots, and they have feelings and loyalties we have to consider," he said. "Also, the more students you move, the more you may have to transport."

DRUG TOLERANCE
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

The word tolerance when applied to drugs is not particularly a good thing. It can mean that over a period of time our body has become adjusted to a medicine and the drug will no longer achieve the desired effect it once did.

This tolerance effect can apply to many types of common use drug products — laxatives, cough preparations, skin treatment creams and ointments. With prescription medicines the tolerance effect can be even more serious. We will always caution you when such a possibility exists.

Students willing to get 2nd flu shot

The prospect of a second dose of the swine flu vaccine left some Northwest suburban young adults wailing—but willing.

Their reaction Thursday came after an announcement by county health officials that persons 18 to 24 years old who received a swine flu vaccination should get a second "booster" shot to guarantee immunity.

The second shot would be needed one month after a first dosage because 18-to 24-year-olds have never been exposed to a relative of the swine flu, such as the Asian flu of 1957, federal officials have said.

MANY RESIDENTS in that age group interviewed Thursday at Harper College in Palatine said they did not receive the first vaccine, although Harper offered free inoculations.

"I didn't get one because I felt it wasn't perfected enough," said Judy Hawke, 18, Hanover Park. "Now I know it wasn't."

But several of the students who did receive the first shot said they would accept a second if it was readily available.

"I can't see any reason why I shouldn't get the shot," said Jeff Richardson, 20, Palatine. "Otherwise the first time would have been a waste of time."

"If they had it like they did the first time at Harper I would get it," said Mike Beth, 19, Elgin. "I might as well get it again since I didn't get any ill effects."

ROCHELLE LEGGETT, 19, Rolling Meadows, said she would probably go for a second shot. "I don't need to get sick so I can't come to school," she said.

Jon Helgeland, 19, Des Plaines, said he did not get the first vaccine because he had heard a booster would be needed anyway, and "no mention was made of when boosters would be given."

Registration forms, signed by persons inoculated last month during Cook County's vaccination program stated that persons under age 25 may have to get a second shot. But health officials recently began urging a second dosage because they concluded it was necessary for young adults, health officials said Wednesday.

At least one young adult interviewed Thursday felt that one shot was enough.

"With the first one I ended up with a lump on my arm and I felt nauseous for a few days," said Richard Bade, 18, Arlington Heights. "It wouldn't be worth it to go through that again."

New NSSEO policy to assist parents at meetings

by DIANE GRANAT

Parents may have a louder voice in the education of their children as a result of efforts by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization governing board to improve communication among parents, administrators and board members.

The NSSEO board approved a policy to assist parents with special needs who appear before the board. The board also appointed a parent to the cooperative's finance committee and heard parent requests for information about policy and program changes.

NSSEO oversees the education of deaf, blind, and physically, emotionally and mentally handicapped children from 10 Northwest suburban school districts.

A POLICY to provide special assistance — such as an interpreter for the deaf or a reader for the visually impaired — for parents who attend NSSEO board meetings was approved by a 7-3 vote.

The policy would apply if the parents with a special need were invited to appear before the board or when an item on the agenda pertains to the parents. If the parents request to speak to the board, however, the special services must be supplied at the expense of the parents.

A controversy in recent months over who should pay for an interpreter for deaf parents attending board meetings led the board to create the policy.

The policy was considered a "compromise" by some board members who have struggled since October to arrive at an agreeable way to solve the communication problem.

"TWO OR THREE board members feel (the policy) is too generous, that it is an illegitimate expenditure of tax money to provide personal services," said Board Pres. Margaret Pageler.

On the other hand, Mrs. Pageler said, some members believe an interpreter should be provided at all meetings that deaf parents attend.

Board member Walter Kendall, who represents Palatine Township Dist. 15, said he believes the policy only "goes halfway in solving the problem." Kendall said he opposed the new policy because he believes "governmental bodies are duty-bound to create ways to communicate with the people they are serving."

In another effort to improve parent communication and participation, Gerald Lenza, president of Parents and Teachers of Handicapped Students, was appointed to the NSSEO finance committee.

The board also received a letter from Lenza asking that a method be established to inform parents about policy and major program changes in NSSEO so parents may provide their opinions.

LENZA SAID his appointment to the finance committee is "one step closer" in creating communication lines between parents and the schools.

In other action Wednesday, the board approved the hiring of an additional physical therapist at Kirk Center for the handicapped in Palatine.

The administration's recommendation to hire a new therapist was made after parents of multiply handicapped children attending Kirk said their children were receiving inadequate therapy.

Search for treasurer replacement stalls again

Efforts to find a suitable replacement for State Treasurer Alan J. Dixon stalled again Thursday when State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, was suggested as a successor.

Dixon and his top aides declined to comment on the possibility Demuzio, a close political ally and former running mate of Gov. Daniel Walker, would be picked.

However, reliable sources discounted the suggestion Demuzio would get the post. Dixon was elected secretary of state. He can resign before Jan. 10 to allow Walker to pick someone for the post.

If Dixon holds the position until he is sworn in as secretary of state, Republican Governor-elect James R. Thompson will be able to pick a replacement.

DIXON HAS favored his own top aide, Joseph P. McMahon, for the post and has said he can think of five or six others he would find acceptable.

He told a Springfield press conference Tuesday that unless someone was "personally repugnant" to him, he would step down for that person.

A top aide to Dixon said, "Demuzio told me that he wanted to stay in the state Senate and I think that is fine."

Demuzio ran against Dixon for secretary of state in a bitterly disputed campaign during the March primary election.

THE STALEMATE over the appointment seems to linger because Dixon does not want to give Walker a base of operation for the next state general election in 1978.

Some observers have reasoned that Walker wants to appoint an ally to the post to give him a spokesman in state government during the next two years.

Besides McMahon, State Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, who is leaving the legislature after an unsuccessful bid to become attorney general, and Metropolitan Sanitary District Trustee Jerome Consentino have been mentioned.

Several other members of the Illinois General Assembly also have expressed interest.

THE PENTAGON ANNOUNCED Thursday it is going ahead with the controversial $22.9 billion B-1 bomber program under an arrangement that will allow President-elect Jimmy Carter to review it after taking office to make his own decision on whether the bomber is needed.

Bl bomber project OKd pending Carter decision

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Ford administration Thursday announced its expected decision to go ahead with the controversial and costly B1 bomber program, but included a provision allowing Jimmy Carter additional time to decide on full production.

Air Force Sec. Thomas C. Reed told a news conference that contracts totaling $704.9 million have been let for the first three production models of the airplane as well as "longlead" items for another eight.

Carter has said he wants to review the program before deciding whether to go ahead. Congress has passed legislation that would limit spending until Feb. 1, putting Carter in the position of having to make a decision a few days after he takes office.

REED SAID THE new contracts continued through June the spending limit of $87 million a month, as well as putting production tooling costs under options that do not have to be decided until after next Sept. 30, thus giving Carter more time.

"We appreciate the fact that the new administration will want to preserve several options," Reed said. He said the result of the contracting arrangements was to "provide the president-elect with a good deal of flexibility."

In Plains, Ga., Carter press secretary Jody Powell said the president-elect has made no decision on whether to continue B1 production and "he prefers to wait until he is in the White House."

"I DON'T KNOW which way he is leaning at this point, if he is leaning," Powell said. "The decision is going to be made after a final review."

He said Carter was not consulted in the decision-making process but that Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld informed Carter's Pentagon liaison of the decision Thursday morning before the public announcement.

The latest Defense Dep. figures project the cost of a 244-plane fleet of B1s — to replace the aging B52 strategic bombers — at $22.9 billion, making it one of the most costly weapons programs in history. Reed also said inflation could push the cost up another 25 per cent.

In addition to cost, many critics have based their opposition on doubts that another bomb is needed with new weapons such as the cruise missile now under development.

REED SAID IT would be "extremely foolish" not to go ahead with production, contending the Soviet Union "is moving in a very broad and determined fashion" to achieve strategic superiority in the next few years.

"The B1 is the strategic initiative that can redress that imbalance by the early '80s," he said. "It would be irresponsible not to initiate B1 production at this time."

Reed also said a decision was necessary now because the development contract with Rockwell International, the plane's producer, ran out on Nov. 30 and to close down the plant and possibly reopen it later would cost about $500 million.

Goldwater vies in Senate race for GOP leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Barry Goldwater has entered the competition for U.S. Senate Republican leader believing front-runner Robert Griffin lacks support, an aide said Thursday.

Goldwater, at home in Phoenix, Ariz., wrote to 37 Senate Republican colleagues "to ask your support of my candidacy for minority leader of the Senate."

Griffin, R-Michigan, former assistant to retiring Senate GOP leader

Barry Goldwater

Hugh Scott, was presumed to be ahead. He faced only a possible challenge by Howard Baker of Tennessee.

"We find a lot of Griffin's commitments are soft," the Goldwater aide said. "I think it could easily be a tossup."

GRIFFIN expressed surprise over Goldwater's late entry and said that Goldwater will be hard to beat.

"Without a title, Barry Goldwater is already a great Republican leader and a powerful voice," Griffin said.

"Frankly, I'm surprised he wants the job. Barry has a lot of friends and admirers, and I'm one of them. He'll be tough competition."

Goldwater came close to challenging Scott for the leadership post two years ago, but withdrew at the last minute. One survey then showed Goldwater might have had enough votes from conservatives to defeat Scott.

But Griffin still considered the odds-on choice to succeed Scott when Republican senators meet Jan. 4 to elect their leaders.

Mother asks Supreme Court to save Gilmore

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Gary Gilmore's mother Thursday asked the U.S. and Utah Supreme Courts to block the execution of her son, who wants to die at a sunrise execution Monday.

Petitions signed by Bessie Gilmore of Milwaukie, Ore., were filed less than four days before her son's scheduled execution.

The case will be considered by the U.S. Supreme Court at its regular conference Friday.

The appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court asked it to consider "federal constitutional questions raised by Utah's uncritical acquiescence in the use of its legal machinery to execute Gary Mark Gilmore's month-long self-destructive urge."

MRS. GILMORE'S plea also said the Utah Supreme Court did not conduct an appropriate hearing to decide if Gilmore was competent to withdraw his appeal of a murder conviction and ask for immediate sentencing.

The application to the U.S. Supreme Court was addressed to Justice Byron R. White, presiding justice for the area that includes Utah. He promptly referred it to the full court.

The petition filed with the Utah Supreme Court asked for an execution delay allowing the appeal to go to the federal courts.

Utah Chief Justice F. Henri Henriod said he was unable to locate one of the other four justices Thursday afternoon and the state court would wait until Friday to consider the request.

Stanford University law professor Anthony Amsterdam, 41, who fought the case which led to the temporary outlawing of the death penalty by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1972, represented Mrs. Gilmore in both filings.

AMSTERDAM WAS joined in the state suit by attorney Richard Giauque of Salt Lake City, who appeared for a group of local clergymen to oppose Gilmore's execution at the State Board of Pardons' clemency hearing earlier this week.

The board voted 2-1 to allow the execution to go ahead and Fourth District Judge J. Robert Bullock ordered Gilmore shot at sunrise Monday.

Mrs. Gilmore signed a one-page statement authorizing Amsterdam and his colleagues to file actions on behalf of her and her son. The statement said all services would be provided free.

The U.S. Supreme Court petition argued for a stay on grounds the Utah courts had not thoroughly inquired into why Gilmore asked for the lifting of a temporary stay.

Movers' price estimates wrong 50% of the time

Household moving companies submit inaccurate estimates to customers 50 per cent of the time, the White House inflation monitoring agency said Wednesday.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability said the inaccuracy and high moving prices are caused by inflexible government-regulated rate levels.

It urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to lower the "unnecessarily high costs of moving" and allow price competition within the industry.

AREA MOVING company officials said price estimates are inaccurate as much as 50 per cent of the time because customers misrepresent the size of their move.

ICC regulations require moving companies to provide a potential customer with an estimate of the total charge. The council, however, said the estimate "is not binding . . . since the final bill is determined by the ICC-regulated rate, which is based on the weight of the goods transported."

Local moving company officials said any deregulation in these rates would cause havoc in the industry.

LARRY JAMESON, vice president of Glen Ellyn Moving and Storage Corp. in Arlington Heights, said there was a time when the industry was not regulated and there were no controls. He said there were "a lot of fly-by-night operations" that lost furniture and were generally undependable.

Barry Cocoran, sales manager for Noffs Moving and Storage Inc., Arlington Heights, said price competiton would be "a disaster." He said in a price war type of situation "something would have to be sacrificed and it would probably be service."

To alleviate the estimate problem, the council urged the Icc to modify its regulations "to increase the accuracy of estimates and therefore increase the satisfaction" of customers.

It also asked for an investigation to determine if price flexibility is possible.

RESCUERS IN LEBANON, Tenn., work to free President Ford's half-brother Leslie King from wreckage of his Lincoln Continental after he crashed head on with a tractor trailer rig on I-40. King, who made a wrong turn onto the highway, was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Ford's brother 'legally drunk' at time of fatality

LEBANON, Tenn. (UPI) — President Ford's half-brother, Leslie H. "Bud" King, was killed Thursday when he turned into the wrong lane on an interstate highway and collided head-on with a tractor-trailer truck.

The state safety department said King's body contained sufficient alcohol to legally make him a drunken driver under Tennessee law.

Jim Henderson, information officer for the Tennessee Highway Patrol, said a test of King's blood showed an alcohol content of .14 per cent. Under Tennessee law, a reading of .10 per cent is sufficient to declare a driver legally drunk.

TRUCKERS AND other motorists flashed their lights and tried to raise King on his Citizens' Band radio to warn him he was in the wrong lane, but he was traveling at a high speed and apparently did not notice the light signals or hear the radio calls, police said.

The driver of the tractor trailer, Billy Hutson of Sparta, Tenn., was not injured in the crash.

The accident happened about 1:45 a.m. about five miles west of Lebanon and 25 miles east of Nashville on Interstate 40. The 53-year-old king was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Leslie King

"But had high blood pressure and sometimes he would pull off the road to rest. He may have pulled back on from a rest stop and just turned the wrong way," said Cookeville funeral home operator Ed Hooper, a longtime friend of the King family who is in charge of the King funeral.

Investigators said there were two cases of whiskey in the trunk of King's car. He apparently had purchased the liquor in Nashville and was taking it home to Cookeville where liquor is not sold.

THE PRESIDENT was notified of the accident early Thursday and telephoned King's widow at her Cookeville home. Hooper said the president expressed his sympathy and regrets but said he would not be able to attend the funeral, scheduled at 1 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church at Cookeville.

"The president is not coming," Hooper said. "He called Mrs. King and talked to her personally. He expressed his regrets and said due to circumstances beyond his control he cannot be here for the funeral."

King was the son of Ford's father, who divorced the President's mother and remarried. Ford and King did not know each other until their college days. Ford grew up in Michigan and King in Wyoming.

Witnesses told police they saw King enter the wrong lane of the Interstate at U.S. 231, about five miles east of the accident scene.

"We have some witnesses who spotted the car traveling in the wrong direction," said Information Officer Jim Henderson of the Tennessee Highway Patrol. "He was traveling at a high rate of speed, but I don't know exactly how fast he was going.

"Some truck drivers tried to warn him on the CB (Citizens Band radio) because he had a CB, too, and they flashed their lights, but he apparently did not see them."

Pikarsky teaching wage 'improper'

by LYNN ASINOF

Several Regional Transportation Authority officials Thursday said RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky behaved improperly if not illegally when he received $2,000 for teaching at the University of Illinois Circle Campus.

"I think there are mixed feelings on the board whether this violates the RTA Act," said RTA board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston. "My own basic feeling is it was probably a violation."

THE RTA ACT states "the chairman shall not be engaged in any other business or employment during such person's term as chairman." It further prohibits any director from being employed by the state or any governmental agency.

Pikarsky reportedly told the board in closed session Thursday that the money earned by teaching was given to charities. "That was not employment," Pikarsky said of his teaching job.

RTA lawyers have backed Pikarsky, saying the teaching post did not constitute outside employment.

Baldino and other board members, however, do not accept that view and have asked for a written legal opinion.

"IT'S TAXABLE income even if he is giving it away," Baldino said, noting the donations are tax deductible.

The charges surrounding Pikarsky's teaching activities have added to the suburban directors' dissatisfaction with the chairman. They called for Pikarsky's resignation earlier this year and for a short time blocked passage of the 1976-77 budget to force his ouster.

Director Jerry D. Boose of St. Charles said the teaching controversy is one more example of Pikarsky's incompetence.

"It was not just a political issue," Boose said of the demands for Pikarsky's ouster. "We still want Milton out."

Pikarsky's teaching activities were first attacked by State Rep. Calvin L. Skinner Jr., R-Crystal Lake, a vigorous RTA opponent.

Skinner accused Pikarsky of accepting the money in the midst of his battle with suburban members because his job future with the RTA was uncertain.

Last year Pikarsky also taught a course at Northwestern University, but was not paid for his time.

Baldino said Pikarsky was aware of a conflict in the payments. "He wouldn't have given it to charity if he didn't feel there was some sort of problem," he said.

Court defines legal ad publication

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has ruled county legal advertising for suburban townships must be printed in suburban newspapers published in those townships.

Judge Nathan Cohen, in a preliminary ruling Wednesday, said the Suburban Trib is not eligible to receive legal advertisements from the county.

The Cook County Board had directed that 1976 tax notices be published in the Trib, a supplement to the Chicago Tribune. The assessments affect four suburban townships: Barrington, Palatine, Hanover and Berwyn.

Suburban newspaper publishers and owners, including Robert Y. Paddock, executive vice president/administration for The Paddock Corp., filed suit, blocking publication of the legal advertisements.

Cohen did not rule on a contention by the Trib that it was a separate publication. But he did rule that since it is not first published in the affected townships, the Trib did not meet statutory requirements for county legal publication.

Statutes require that if a newspaper is published within a township, it must be used for legal advertising related to that township; if there is no local paper, a paper of general circulation may be used.

Little 'fiscal restraint'

Lawmakers can't say no to spending this session

by STEVE-BROWN
A news analysis

Some observers of the Illinois General Assembly are beginning to picture the state capitol as a giant cash register with the money drawer open.

Midway through the fall veto session, the lawmakers have not shown much "fiscal restraint" — two words supposed to be the key phrase for this session. The state's fiscal problems purportedly were so bad the legislature could not vote to spend any more money.

This has not been the case. In the past week, the lawmakers have considered spending more money for higher education, various commissions and last, but not least, themselves.

WHILE THEIR actions are not complete, the signs indicate the "no additional spending" warning offered by Gov. Daniel Walker and Governor-elect James R. Thompson will be ignored.

The temptation has provided too great for the legislators. Universities lobbied for restoration of funds cut by Walker, and the normally reluctant Senate responded by restoring funds.

It was the Senate that refused one year ago to override Walker's veto of aid for elementary and secondary schools. This time around, the picture is slightly different. A few senators have resisted the temptation to vote more money. State Sen. Bill Morris, D-Waukegan, said he had been voting "no" so often his electronic voting switch broke down.

Morris even split with fellow independent State Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, on one override. Buzbee wanted to restore another $230,000 for the state energy commission. Morris did not, but the money was approved anyway.

In the Illinois House, lawmakers busied themselves with overrides and the groundwork for their own pay raises. Some of the efforts were disrupted by the effort to pass a new capital punishment bill.

Not to be out-done by the Senate, the House also voted for more spending for mental health and other programs.

THE PAY BILL and the death penalty legislation drew most of the attention. Some lawmakers correctly objected to the capital punishment bill because the session is theoretically limited to veto matters and "emergency" legislation like the pay bill. Other issues should be raised when the new session of the General Assembly begins in January.

The salary increase has only a few active supporters. Many legislators are content to sit back and quietly vote "yes." The opponents are more vocal, but they also will accept the raises if the legislation is approved.

State Rep. Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, circulated an amendment which would have prevented anyone who voted against the pay bill from getting the raise. Williams was not serious, just making a point.

The scenes will switch Dec. 13 when the legislature returns for the final week of the session. The pay raise will get another test in the House and if approved, it will be sent to the Senate. Many of the vetoed bills approved this week will be considered by the House.

THERE IS NO reason to believe there will be any more fiscal restraint. What will be important to watch is the amount of money approved by the legislature.

State officials estimated there will be a $100 million balance next June 30, 1977, when the fiscal year ends. Every dollar approved by the legislature now reduces that figure directly.

A proper mix of substantial spending increases, a general economic slowdown that would diminish state revenue and a few slips by the Thompson administration could put Illinois even closer to the brink of fiscal chaos next June.

Glass, Weaver to aid Shapiro?

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, reportedly will lose his leadership position in the Illinois Senate to State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northbrook, when the Illinois General Assembly convenes next year.

Newly selected Republican leader, State Sen. David Shapiro, R-Amboy, will pick Glass, and State Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, to be the assistant Republican leaders in the Senate.

Glass had sought the top leadership post, but decided to back Shapiro after it became apparent he could not muster enough votes.

Glass declined to comment on the report he will serve as an assistant leader. Shapiro told reporters Tuesday that he had not decided on his choice after he had been selected in a four-hour closed door caucus. Several key Senate Republicans however, told The Herald that Glass and Weaver were picked by Shapiro.

THE DECISION to replace Graham came after the veteran senator nominated Shapiro for the top leadership post. Graham was an assistant leader for several terms, but had a stroke several years ago followed by recent illnesses.

Besides Glass, area Republicans State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect and State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, had sought the top leadership position and were considered in the running for the assistant leadership jobs.

No positions will be official until the Senate elects all of its officers on Jan. 12. Besides formulating Republican policy on Senate issues, Glass and Weaver, if appointed by Shapiro, will receive an additional $6,000 in their regular legislative salary. Shaprio will receive another $10,000.

Shapiro will replace State Sen. William Harris, R-Pontiac, who did not seek reelection and was defeated in his bid for the secretary of state in the Nov. 2 election.

The way we see it

GOP rivalry clarifies issues

We're encouraged by the interest this year in the village presidency in Hoffman Estates.

Trustee Melvin E. Timmons has announced he will challenge Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and will present his candidacy to the Schaumburg Township Republican organization at its Sunday convention. Such rivalry is healthy in Hoffman Estates, where too often there has been only token competition offered by the township Democratic organization.

In previous years there have been few issues brought to the electorate, and as a result campaign programs — in many communities the most important part of the campaign — have rarely existed. Without this progressive planning in which programs and the focus of the next administration are outlined, voters are unable to intelligently select their elected officials.

The floor of the convention Sunday should be a time when the differences between the two candidates can be aired and the Republican organization can select the candidate best able to represent the party.

A similar Republican convention is scheduled in Palatine this weekend, but without the important competitive spirit of the last Palatine Republican convention.

Four years ago, Palatine Republicans engaged in a spirited convention characterized by an open selection and keen competition for the more than 100 Palatine delegates from the neighborhoods of the community.

These conventions represent grass roots politicking, and particularly in Palatine the process has been a healthy one. It has removed the selection process from an inner circle of slatemakers to a more open procedure in which a diverse group of Republicans decide who will run on the ticket.

We hope Hoffman Estates this year follows the Palatine example of 1974, for there are many issues which deserve debate during the Hoffman Estates Republican convention, including the burgeoning growth of the community, an increasing tax rate and traffic congestion on the village's highways. The convention will provide a forum for ideological differences between Timmons and Mrs. Hayter and for practical plans to deal with local issues. The convention system should allow the Republican organization to send its most formidable candidate against what we hope will be a solid Democratic ticket as well as independent candidates.

Scrooge likes inflation

What ghastly news to have to give our readers on the eve of a Christmas season!

On Tuesday, The Herald carried stories that would warm the heart of the cruelest Scrooge.

Rent prices are going up for apartment dwellers in Chicagoland. The first company to announce increases said rents would go up 10 to 12 per cent in the Northwest suburban units it controls.

U.S. Steel Corp. announced a price increase of 6 per cent, matching earlier announcements by other major steel firms.

Speculation about meetings of the OPEC organization centered on possible 10 per cent hikes in the price of crude oil by the oil producing countries.

Substantial increases were predicted in aluminum prices.

Even on a local level, economic news was terrible. In Wheeling, the garbage disposal firm asked for a rate increase of 33 per cent.

There was some levening news: The Lake County Board approved a budget calling for a tax rate increase of only 4 per cent. The Cook County Board approved a new assessment formula that will take some sting out of property tax increases next year; in some areas, though, they'll still go up 10 per cent.

There was even some good economic news: First Federal announced mortgage rate reductions to 8½ per cent, down ¼ to ½ per cent.

But, let's not be Polyanna, the news was mainly awful. Bah, humbug!

One nice thing about it, though. With all that bad news out of our systems, things have to start looking up.

Manager stand correct

Des Plaines Mayor Charles Bolek has taken the right approach in recommending the city switch to a full-time city manager, part-time mayor form of government.

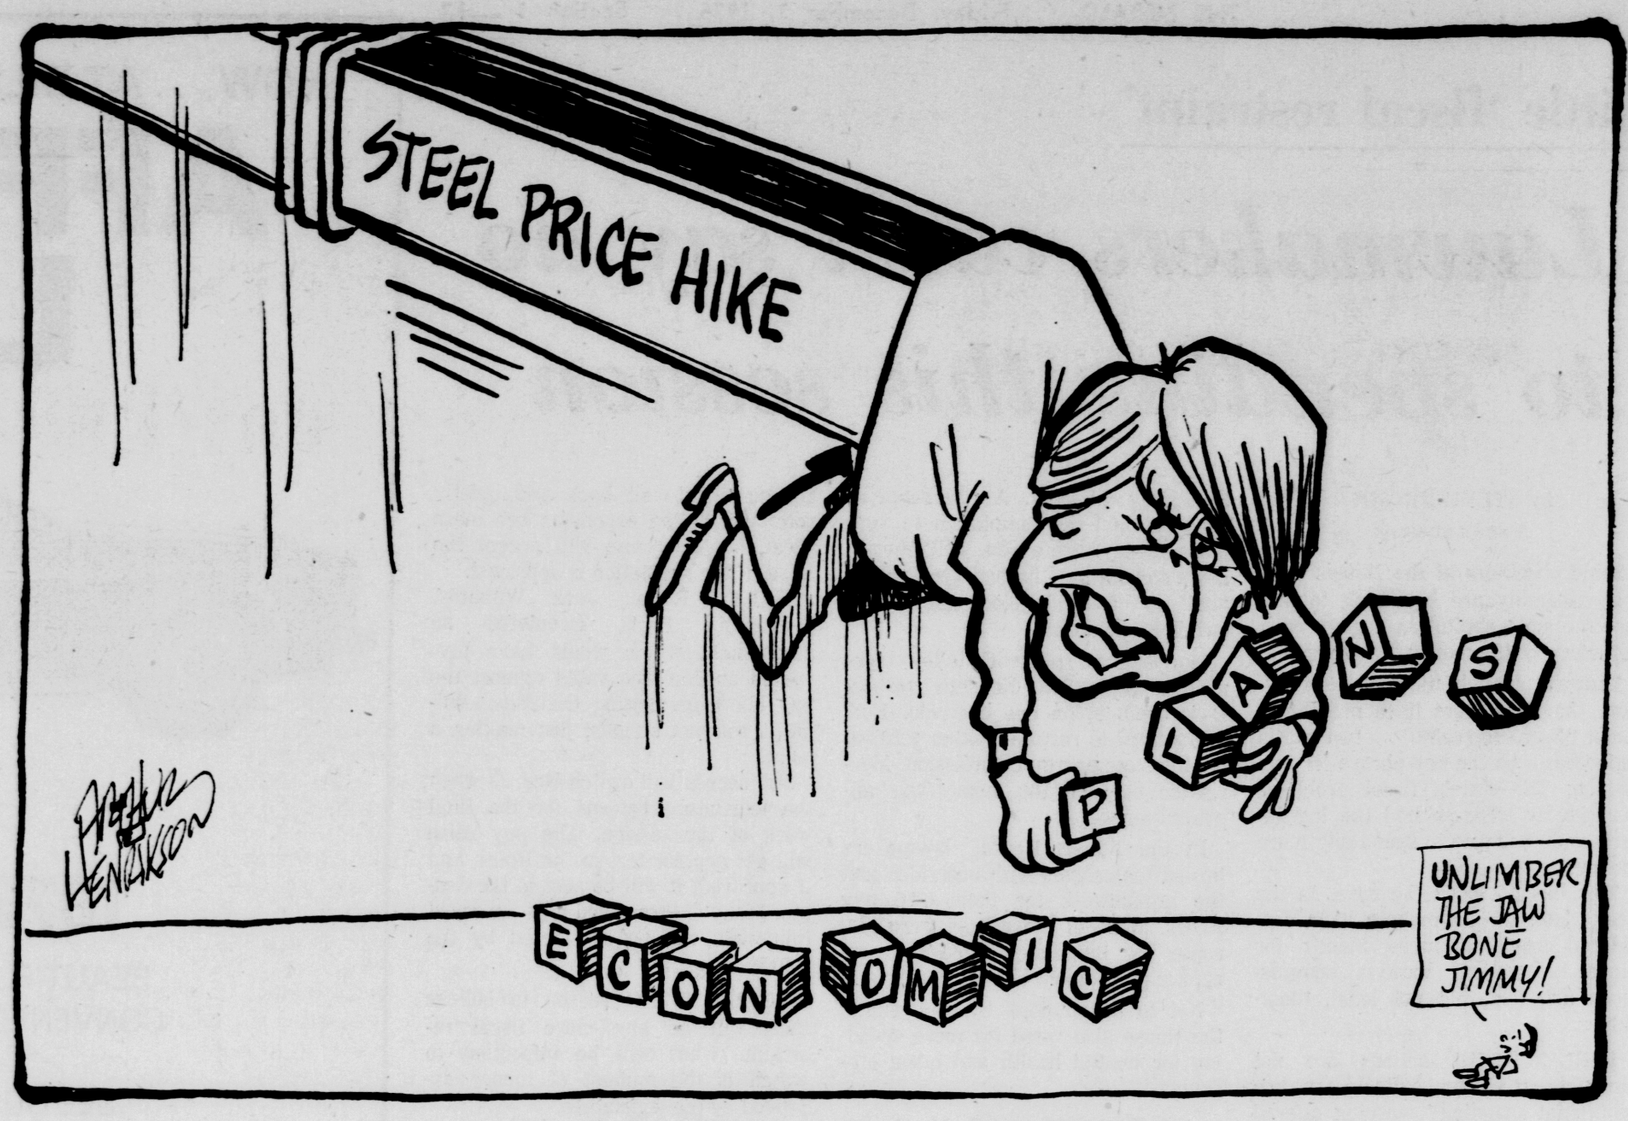
Bolek, who replaced Herbert Behrel as full-time mayor in August, has suggested this plan be put into effect following the April city elections.

Bolek's reasons for such a change also are sound. He said a full-time manager is needed to:

- Back up the mayor if he should become ill or disabled.
- Give the city more professional management.
- Make the transition between mayors smoother and not stop the administrative machinery.

We called for this form of government in Des Plaines when Behrel left office and we support Bolek's recommendation to the city council.

The council should act on this recommendation quickly so candidates seeking the mayor's seat in April will know the requirements of the office.



Down! Down! You . . . You . . . Republicans!

Agency disavows violence by contacts

FBI link to anti-Castro terrorists

by NEA/London Economist News Service

WASHINGTON — Certain federal agencies have a love-hate relationship of long standing with the Cuban exile community in the United States.

The Central Intelligence Agency, for one, trained and employed some of the most extreme opponents of Fidel Castro in the use of explosives, but then sought frantically to dissociate itself from their use of that training to settle old scores.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, too, maintained liaison with the Cuban exiles primarily for intelligence and counter-intelligence purposes; but sometimes the FBI would suddenly find itself investigating some of its own excellent Cuban sources on criminal charges.

THE PROBLEM has found dramatic expression in the cast of characters arrested in Trinidad and Venezuela in connection with the explosion of a bomb on Oct. 6 on a Cuban airliner carrying 73 passengers from Barbados to Havana.

The suspected ringleader is Orlando Bosch, a Cuban emigre who once practiced pediatrics in Miami but eventually turned his full-time attention to the United Revolutionary Organization Co-ordination, a council of unrelenting anti-Castro fanatics.

BOSCH, WHO was trained by the CIA in the 1960s, later served four years in a federal prison for a bazooka attack on a Polish ship that visited Miami after Havana, but then he violated the terms of his parole by fleeing to South America. He is suspected of, among other things, masterminding the murder of more moderate leaders in Miami's Cuban community, and he is very much wanted by the FBI.

Had the FBI been searching earnestly for Bosch, it might have had its man in Caracas, Joseph Leo, ask their mutual friend, Luis Posada Carriles, about him. Posada, also a Cuban exile, is the former chief of the Venezuelan security police, and until his recent arrest in connection with the aircraft explosion, ran a detective agency in Caracas.

IT TURNS OUT that Leo (who like most FBI representatives overseas, carries the title of "legal attache" at the American embassy) helped Posada obtain United States visas for Herman Ricardo Losano. Ricardo is also under arrest in Venezuela in the aircraft bombing case, as is Freddy Lugo, who happened to have Leo's name and telephone number in his address book when he was picked up by the Trinidadian police.

Henry Kissinger has denied Castro's charge that the CIA was directly involved in the sabotage of the Cuban aircraft. The FBI insists that Leo's relations with Posada were perfectly proper and that the bureau man had no idea what the Cuban exiles were doing.

However, both agencies may have to become far more concerned if, as early evidence suggests, the same gang is implicated in the bomb explosion in Washington on Sept. 2 that killed Orlando Letelier, the former Chilean foreign minister and ambassador to the United States (during the leftist government of the late Salvador Allende), and a young woman associate.

Tracking the lame duck taking the long way home

by DICK WEST
The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I see a lot of nature films on television and enjoy them all. The animal kingdom truly is an inexhaustible source of fascination.

If I were producing one of those programs, I'd take the cameras up to Capitol Hill and do a film study of one of the most curious creatures in all nature — the lame duck.

The feeding, breeding and particularly the trekking habits of lame ducks are absolutely astonishing.

Most wild fowl, as we have learned from the Disney studios and other nature film makers, migrate seasonally along fixed flyways. Lame ducks, by contrast, flit away biennially, on even numbered years.

MOREOVER, they follow no migratory patterns, but instead fly off in all directions to diverse destinations, in some cases circling the globe.

Naturalists, mostly amateurs who observe lame ducks for their own amusement, say the flights usually start in early November, shortly after a congressional election and continue until Congress reconvenes in January.

What strange instinct prompts this dispersal? Apparently it is not the mating instinct that sends them winging off, hither, thither and yon. Some lame ducks take their mates along; others not.

More likely the flights have something to do with the homing instinct.

Some naturalists theorize that lame ducks are disoriented by an election defeat. As they start to migrate back to their home states and districts, their homing impulses go awry and they return home by way of Europe, the Orient and-or the Middle East.

Filming some of these treks with telescopic, stop-action cameras might help us understand what causes this peculiar behavior. A good place to station a nature study camera would be outside some committee's door in one of the congressional office buildings.

THE COMMITTEES, with their lush growth of travel expense vouchers, are the chief feeding grounds of migratory lawgivers.

There is a traditional overseas exodus of committee delegations during a congressional recess. According to current estimates, around 75 lawgivers will find committee business this month and next in points as far removed as Finland and Antarctica.

These groups are apt to include a lame duck or two. With patience and luck, a nature photographer might be able to catch one on film as it flutters off.

Slow motion closeups possibly would help solve one of nature's deepest mysteries — what benefit do the taxpayers derive from lame duck trekking?

To the naked eye, it looks like wasted motion. But as we know from previous film studies of flora and fauna, nature is full of surprises.

Absentee voter protests lost vote

I am very upset about having lost my vote in the Nov. 2 election. I found out that the absentee ballot that I cast was never counted because it was not delivered to the polling place by the County Clerk's office. Not only my ballot wasn't counted, but there were 48 precincts right here in Wheeling Township where no absentee ballots were delivered to be counted. That means there are voters who think they voted in this election, but their votes were never counted.

A friend of mine called my attention to an article in the Mount Prospect Herald that started me wondering if my ballot had been counted. The Republican Committeeman of Wheeling Township had requested that absentee voters in any of the 48 precincts where no ballots were received contact him. The article did not list the precincts and did not appear at all in my Arlington Herald. I think this article should have been printed in all The Herald papers.

I learned that my precinct, 57, was one of those with missing ballots by calling the Republican office. I think that it would be a public service if you would print the 48 precinct numbers with instructions to call Mr. Yonkers at 259-0739 so that the protests of all disenfranchised voters can be registered.

The Wheeling Township precincts in which no absentee ballots were received are: 23, 24, 25, 26, 29, 31, 32, 34, 35, 36, 39, 40, 41, 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 53, 54, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 67, 69, 73, 78, 82, 84, 86, 89, 94, 96, 99, 101, 102, 104, 105, 110, 113, 118, 120, 122.

As a student out-of-state I can register and vote at school, but I want to vote on state and Cook County races as well as the presidency, and the only way to do that is by voting absentee. If we all protest, maybe action will be taken to prevent the loss of our votes, the next time.

Sincerely yours,
James L. Schafehan

Teen-age mother grateful for support

On Nov. 9, an article entitled "Teenage mothers receive help" was published. I am Barbara, the girl in the picture, and I'm writing to say thank you to all the beautiful people who responded to the article with love and support. I was overwhelmed by the responses.

The reason I agreed to do the interview with Sheryl Jedlinski was to bring to light the problems of single parents and unwed mothers. The class I was enrolled in helped me so much, and I know there are other mothers in similar circumstances who will benefit from the article. If anyone contacts The Herald who is a single mother who needs help, I'd be glad to do what I can.

This experience of raising Jason alone has shown me more beautiful, loving and helpful people than I could name. They all have shown how much good is left in a world full of turmoil. I'm so glad to have had the chance to meet them all.

Steel makers breaking ranks over price hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Some steel producers already seem to be "breaking ranks" and shipping steel at the old price despite the controversial 6 per cent price hikes that supposedly took effect Wednesday, t he White House inflation monitoring agency said Thursday.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability — comprising President Ford's top economic advisers — also said steel companies may have decided to raise their prices now to beat any antiinflationary wage-price guidelines Jimmy Carter's administration might recommend.

"We have strong evidence and reports already that some producers are breaking ranks and shipping at the old price," said the council's acting director, William Lilley III.

"I don't know if this is going to hold. I don't know if this is a freak. I don't know if this will lead to further discounting."

THE COUNCIL also released a lengthy report on data it had gathered on the steel industry.

Without drawing firm conclusions, the report said the steel industry was operating at only two-thirds capacity, and demand from customers would remain low for at least another four months.

The companies had justified the price increases by saying that, although current demand was down, orders for future delivery were strong.

Lilley denied the administration is trying to "jawbone" the steel industry into trimming or rolling back the hikes. Jawboning is a term used to describe informal government pressure on industry or labor unions to hold down prices or wages. But the report said the council staff "has some serious reservations about the announced list price increases."

BEFORE THE report is released, Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., chairman of the House subcommittee on economic stabilization, said the steel price increase plus other increases announced by the aluminum industry may lead to "imminent and . . . unavoidable" price controls. His panel initiates wage and price control proposals.

"Congress and my subcommittee which would first consider price control legislation will not stand idly by and watch our nation's economic recovery dealt a near lethal blow through administered price manipulation by some industries," he told a news conference. Moorhead said he plans to hold a hearing next Wednesday on the price increases.

Libya buys 10% interest in Fiat

Libya has bought a 10 per cent interest in the Fiat automobile company for $415 million, but has attached "no political strings" the company president says. Fiat shares jumped 19 per cent in value Thursday and Industry Minister Carlo Donat-Cattin said he thought the government would authorize the deal because it leaves control of Fiat in Italian hands. Fiat, with 200,000 workers, is Italy's biggest private employer. Fiat president Giovanni Agnelli said Libya will buy up a new share issue of 20 million ordinary and 10 million preferential shares, increasing the Turin firm's shares by 10 per cent. Libya will pay $207 million for the shares, will fully subscribe a $104 million bond issue and will make Fiat a 10-year loan of $104 million, giving Italy a total $415 million in badly needed foreign exchange. Under the agreement, the Arab oil nation's share of Fiat could rise to 13 per cent.

O'Hare service workers strike

Union employes of Butler-Aviation went on strike Thursday at O'Hare International Airport in a dispute over salary.

A company spokesman said 75 full-time workers and 60 part-time employes joined in the walkout, which affected only Butler's O'Hare operation. A union spokesman said the walkout included only 95 workers. Those on strike are members of Local 1487 of the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Union spokesman Earl Rompf said negotiators failed to reach a new contract before the old pact expired at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday, and members voted Wednesday night to go on strike. Rompf said the dispute is over wages paid to ramp service employes who now earn $4.50 to $4.75 per hour. They want an additional 50 cents an hour, plus another 50 cents in fringe benefits, he said.

State's garbage a gold mine?

One of Illinois' most valuable resources by 1980 will be its garbage with a projected value of about $80 million, an authority said Thursday. Ronald O. Kinsey, president of Resource Technology Corp., San Jose, Calif., said Illinois' reclaimed garbage in four years will have the energy equivalent of 9.2 million barrels of oil, 2.2 million tons of coal or 53 billion cubic feet of natural gas. Kinsey's projections, delivered in Chicago, before a recycling seminar sponsored by the American Iron and Steel Institute, also included an estimate that the state's garbage will contain more than 534,000 tons of steel by 1980.

Milk support prices pending

Agriculture Dept. sources said Thursday the agency may decide by mid-December whether to make changes in the government's support price for milk in the quarter beginning Jan. 1. An official queried about the outlook said he could not predict what the outgoing Ford administration would decide. Dairy farmers are asking for an increase. Currently, the Agriculture Dept. is supporting the price of manufacturing-grade milke at $8.26 per hundred-weight. Spokesman for the National Milk Producers Federation said they have asked the agency to raise the floor to $8.41.

People's Gas seeks rehearing

People's Gas Co. says it will ask for a rehearing on its request for a 10.7 per cent rate increase. The Illinois Commerce Commission last month granted the utility a 7.2 per cent hike, which company president Robert M. Drevs called totally inadequate to cover increasing costs. Drevs said Wednesday that if the ICC declines to grant a rehearing, People's Gas might take the issue to court or file for a new rate increase.

New tax law will benefit families changing residence

Speaking dollar-wise
by Robert S. Rosefsky

Continuing our study of the mammoth and complex 1976 Tax Reform Law we find some attractive benefits for families who will be changing residences.

Moving expenses have been deductible right along. The amounts that you can deduct will be expanded in 1977. Previously there had been a $1,000 limitation on how much you could deduct for house-hunting expenses and temporary quarters. That limit will be increased to $1,500 for the 1977 tax year. If you have a house-hunting expedition planned for the waning weeks of this year, you may want to put off until next year to take advantage of the bigger deduction.

In addition, certain expenses incurred in the sale of your old residence and purchase of a new one, or in the settlement of a lease, are deductible up to $3,000. Previously the limit had been $2,500.

IN ORDER TO qualify for these deductions your new place of work must be at least 35 miles farther from your old home than was your former job. This mileage limit was formerly 50 miles, thus many more short moves will qualify for the deduction of moving expenses.

This mileage limit is often confusing. This is what it means: Say that your former job was five miles away from your former residence. After your move, your new job is 40 miles away from where you formerly lived. This situation meets the 35-mile test. If your new job was only 30 mils away from your former residence, you wouldn't meet the test and would not be able to deduct your moving expenses.

In addition to meeting the distance test, you must also meet certain full-time work tests, whether you're employed or self-employed. These tests remain unchanged.

If you sell your home and realize a gain on the sale, that gain is taxable. (A loss is not deductible.) If, though, you put the money into a new home of equal or greater value, you can postpone the payment of taxes on the gain.

Dow drops 2.74 in selling spree

NEW YORK (UPI) — A government report that retail sales declined 0.3 per cent last week triggered an afternoon selling spree Thursday that drove prices irregularly lower in active trading on the New York Sock Exchange.

Analysts said the Commerce Dept. report indicated consumers lacked confidence in the economy's outlook. The failure of sales to pickup during the critical Christmas sales season could spell more trouble for the nation's outlook.

President-elect Jimmy Carter said Wednesday he believed the economy was in worse shape than he originally thought. Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, however, did not elaborate on the assessment.

As a result of the late selling, the Dow Jones industrial average, up about three points at one time, lost 2.74 to 946.64. It had gained 2.16 points in Wednesd y's rally.

Prices closed irregularly higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex market value index gained 0.12 to 99.36.

Ethics panel study urged into gifts from S. Korea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ethics Committee was asked Thursday to investigate South Korean government gifts of cash and other items to members of Congress.

Twelve House Democrats formally requested the investigation in a letter to committee chairman John Flynt. There was no immediate reaction from Flynt, who was in his home district in Georgia.

"Many of our constituents are concerned over some of the newspaper reports which would imply possible questionable conduct by some of our members," the group said, referring to the admission of at least one member that he took cash from a South Korean businessman.

Rep. John McFall of California, the House Democratic whip, admitted receiving $3,000 from Tongsun Park, a South Korean businessman, in October 1974. McFall said he put the money into his office account and used it to make personal loans to himself and members of his staff.

Among the House members urging the investigation is Abner J. Mikva, Democrat from Illinois' 10th Congressional District.

Nature House Gallery

An adventure in wildlife art

by ELEANOR RIVES

Strolling through the Nature House Gallery in Countryside Mall, Palatine, is a gentle wildlife adventure that elates the spirit of both nature and art lovers.

Its appeal might well be to the practical businessman, too, for as J. L. Wade, founder and president of Nature House, Inc., said, "Good art always appreciates in value. Purchasing antique art is a wise investment."

Now celebrating its ninth week in the mall, the art shop, which manager Bob Newman, proclaims as Chicagoland's largest and finest wildlife art gallery, is stocked with outstanding collections of limited edition prints of mammals, birds and flowers by famous American nature artists.

IN AND BETWEEN its 10 small display rooms are also the exquisite porcelain bird sculptures of Marcel Moussalli, orchid portraits by Andre Avinof, Benjamin Maund flower prints, complete collections of Audubon prints in their original large size, and rare and valuable antique natural history books featuring hand-colored prints from 1743 to the late 1800s.

One display room features the highly detailed, authentic North American birds of Richard Sloan, a former Palatine resident who, in a national contest, was judged the greatest wild bird artist in history by the Griggsville Wild Bird Society.

Another room features the North American mammals of Richard Timm, named by the society as the finest contemporary mammal artist. The wild flowers of Maryrose Wampler look for all the world as if they are alive and growing on the walls of a third display room. She, too, was chosen best in her field.

Prints by these nature artists are destined to become collectors' items — they are signed, numbered and issued in limited edition.

REPRODUCTIONS OF THE entire set of 435 Audubon prints on handmade paper with identifying watermarks are on display. Plates destroyed, there are only 250 complete sets in existence.

Two other rooms display antique prints, all hand-colored, all executed between 1825 and 1860.

Antique natural history books, some so valuable they are locked behind glass, are there in mint condition for the connoisseur. John Gould's book of 1859 carries a $10,000 price tag; George Edwards' "A Natural History of Uncommon Birds and Gleanings of Natural History," a seven-volume set, sells for $6,000; and George Rawley's three ornate, red volumes of "Ornithological Miscellany" command $2,000 for the set.

On display next week will be the rare two-volume set of 220 hand-colored prints of American birds by Mark Catesby, the first man to paint American birds in color, the first to show them in their natural habitat. They date back to between 1731 and 1743 and originally sold for slightly less than $50. Today the first edition set is worth $75,000.

Nature House, Inc., with franchised galleries throughout the United States, publishes, produces and markets wildlife art. A certificate of authenticity accompanies each purchase, with dates or periods given for antiques.

"IF IT IS NOT what we say it is, we will pay you five times what you paid for it," said Wade.

A recent addition to the gallery in Palatine is a collection of limited edition, wildlife color photographs by Marlin Perkins of "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom fame. Proceeds from these sales will help in the fight to keep wolves and other endangered North American species from ecoming extinct.

AUTHENTIC MOMENTS in the daily lives of various forms of wildlife are quietly captured in limited edition nature prints that line the walls of Nature House Gallery, Palatine. Included is the collection of animal photographs taken by Marlin Perkins.

"I HAVE HIGH respect for many animals," Marlin Perkins told gallery visitors as he handed out signed photographs of himself posed with a wolf. "There are zones around an animal. If you get inside his attack or escape zone, he is compelled to bite you."

Endangered animals are his mission

by ELEANOR RIVES

Something was astir in Countryside Mall, Palatine, last Monday — something quiet and gentle and good.

The queue of persons curling into the front entrance of the Nature House Gallery led directly to a table where Marlin Perkins, nattily dressed in a grey pinstripe suit and pink shirt that complemented his silver hair, was smiling and talking and autographing photographs of himself with one of his timber wolves.

This was THE Marlin Perkins — friend of animals, former director of Lincoln Park Zoo, director emeritus of the St. Louis Zoo, originator of early television's "Zoo Parade" and star of today's award-winning "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom."

"I GREW UP watching you on TV, and now my children are doing the same thing," said one woman admiringly.

Perkins and his wife, Carol, a trim, blue-eyed woman with a soft halo of platinum hair, are on a mission to alert people to the plight of all endangered animal species in North America, especially the wolf, and to obtain money to help them.

Funds are raised through the sale of limited edition, wildlife color photographs taken by Perkins during his extensive travels all over the world. The prints, limited to 100 each, are signed, and a paragraph on the back describes the animal and his environment. Beautifully simple and appealing, the animal photos may be viewed at Nature House Gallery. They range in price from $75 to $150.

PERKINS AND HIS wife became wolf owners when four cubs, whose parents had been stoned to death, were sent to them from Iran.

"We had a terrible time finding a place to keep our wolves," said Carol. "They are not pets; they are wild animals. A wolf raised in captivity never learns to kill, so it can't survive. It's a total tragedy to take a wild animal as a pet."

The couple loved their beautiful, intelligent animals. "The more we learned about wolves and their terrible situation, the more we felt driven to help them," said Mrs. Perkins.

For five years, Marlin worked to establish a wolf sanctuary, and five years ago it became a reality — the Wild Canid Survival and Research Center, just west of St. Louis, which he directs.

"WE HAVE 50 acres within the 2,500 acres of the Tyson Research Center — land provided by Washington University," said Perkins. "Besides the four Iranian wolves, we have a pack of 11 Mexican greys from southwestern United States. We gather information on wolves from all over the world, especially those in captivity, and keep data banks. And we have established gene pools, so the different species will not become extinct."

He added, "Extinction is forever — and that's too long."

Carol said, "It's illegal to kill a wolf in the United States, but that hasn't stopped anyone. There are fewer than 500 still alive in the 48 states — about 300 in northern Minnesota, maybe one pack in Yellowstone, 30 protection on Isle Royale.

"THE SITUATION is tragic in Alaska, with aerial killing of the animals. Alaska announced it would allow 80 per cent of the wolves to be killed, without even knowing how many there are."

In the center of the sanctuary, the wolves are totally protected and secured with plenty of room

WOLVES ARE THE best parents in the world, elephants are next, according to Carol Perkins, who appeared with her husband, Marlin, at Nature House Gallery earlier this week.

Joanne Woodward's priority list no longer has acting right on top

by VERNON SCOTT

It was a typical American domestic scene but an atypical setting with a high-powered cast.

The home was quiet in the prenoon hours. The mistress of the house was dressed in a maroon sweater, black skirt and shiny black boots that came to the knees.

The lord and master padded around barefoot in a silk dressing gown, attending to last minute details for a business trip.

Incontrovertibly, the fact that the house was a Beverly Hills mansion and the couple were Joanne Woodward and Paul Newman did make a difference.

That Paul was jetting to Italy to check out a new Ferrari race car and Joanne was on her way to get a flu shot was commonplace enough in their lives.

The Newmans, married 18 years, may hold the marital record for two major movie stars. While Paul prefers beer and auto racing to fund-raising events and ballet, the couple gives every appearance of being more compatible than most folk in or out of show biz.

AFTER COMPLETING his role as a hockey player-coach in "Slapshot," Paul has taken a year sabbatical from films. But Joanne is busier than ever. Most recently she costarred with Sally Fields in "Sybil," a gripping two-part NBC-TV drama.

"I used to see my work but not anymore," she said. "I studied everything I did. Acting was an obsession. Today acting is what I do to earn money. I no longer care about it that much.

"Maybe the need to act is something you outgrow. I remember how difficult it was for Paul and me to believe Marlon Brando when he said acting wasn't important to him anymore. Now we understand.

"Once I desperately needed to act. Now unless it's fun, there are too many other things I want to do.

"I'M CHAIRMAN OF the board of Dancers in New York. It's a contemporary dance company with 14 dancers who do ballet and classical things with modern interpretation. I'm principal fundraiser."

While her ballet company absorbs a great deal of time, it is only one of Joanne's many activities.

She attends dance classes herself, takes singing lessons, practices the piano and mother hens daughters Clea, 11, and Melissa, 15.

She is on the dance panel for the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D. C., and is honorary chairman for the National Society of Autistic Children.

Joanne is also active in Zero Population and Planned Parenthood.

Joanne Woodward

As if all that were not enough, she attends school meetings and does much of the family cooking, admitting her Crock Pot simplifies this domestic chore.

Surprisingly, Joanne is a tranquil, relaxed woman of 46. When the pace begins to tell, she bakes bread and works on needlepoint. Earlier this month she flew to her native Georgia to watch Paul win an auto race.

"I LOVE TO WATCH Paul race," she said. "It's really exciting. He won the president's trophy for amateur driver of the year.

"Driving fast doesn't do anything for me, though. I'd rather dance. It's the same with Paul and his racing."

Joanne, a natural blonde, shortened and colored her hair red for "Sybil." The transformation has softened her features, making her strikingly beautiful and younger looking than she was 15 years ago.

"Everyone likes the color and style and so do I," she said. "So this is the way it will stay."

Next spring the Newmans will leave their rented houses in Beverly Hills and Malibu to return to their permanent home in Connecticut.

Joanne would prefer to live in New York to be closer to her dance company and other activities.

"YOU'VE ONLY GOT one life to live, and you should go with it in as many directions as possible," she said. "There are still some things I'd like to learn.

"My children ride horseback, and I'd love to take it up. But I'm terrified of horses. I'm sure I could find the time, but it's a matter of finding the courage."

Will Joanne find time for future movies?

"Oh sure," she concluded. "And that doesn't take any courage at all."

New movie mixes rock sound with World War II

by VERNON SCOTT

Remember the standard joke about the supercolossal Hollywood war epic advertised as "Bringing you World War II with the original cast."

Now somebody's gone and done it.

Twentieth Century-Fox in conjunction with producers Sandy Leiberman and Lou Reizner have made "All This and World War II."

It is comprised principally of newsreel footage with some snips from feature movies included. But the unusual element of the new film is the sound track, comprised, with few exceptions, of music written by the Beatles and performed almost exclusively by pop singers of today.

COMBINING WORLD War II and the contemporary rock sound would appear to be incongruous. But Reizner, producer and music director responsible for joining songs with film, thinks otherwise.

"It would have been easy to take the music of the era and dub it to match the action on screen," said Reizner, an American who makes his home in England. "But we'd have lost the young audience.

"We want all age groups to see this picture because we think it makes a statement about the absurdity of war. It is the definitive anti-war film.

"The music and lyrics work beautifully with the footage.

"One segment shows the German army goosestepping to the cadence of the old English dance hit, 'The Lambeth Walk.'

"We have Helen Reddy singing 'Fool on the Hill' while the screen shows actual footage of Adolph Hitler dancing with Eva Braun at Berchtesgaden."

AMONG THE OTHER voices singing Beatles classics are Tina Turner, Elton John, Keith Moon, Leo Sayer, Rod Stewart, David Essex and such groups as Ambrosia, Gee Bees, Four Seasons and Status Quo.

Most of the Beatles' top hits are represented: "Magical Mystery Tour," "I Am The Walrus," "She's Leaving Home," "When I'm Sixty-Four," "Michelle," "Hey, Jude," "Yesterday," "Let It Be" and "Sun King."

The backup band for the film is the London Symphony Orchestra.

Majority of the film was supplied by Fox Movietone Newsreels, along with clips from the National Archives, the U.S. Signal Corps and London's Imperial War Museum. Additional film includes English, Japanese, Russian and German footage.

The gory elements of war — soldiers dying in battle, the horrors of concentration camps and other atrocities — were purposely cut from this chronicle of the war.

INSTEAD, EMPHASIS is placed on the men who controlled the course of the war and the events that shaped its conclusion.

"We avoid scenes of people dying because the subject of war is down enough," he said.

"Audiences know about death in war, and our purpose isn't to offend the sensibilities of people who see the picture.

"This film is a complete departure from anything ever done. There is no precedent for it. Audiences won't be sure what to expect until word of mouth gets around.

"WE THINK the footage and the Beatles will strike an affinity with both audiences — the young and the old. More than any composers, the Beatles fit into this sort of fusion because millions of young people grew up with their music."

It took three years for Reizner and company to produce "All This and World War II." (Although now released, it is not scheduled to hit Chicago until the first of the year.) Reizner said more than a million feet of film was screened by researchers — including himself — before selections were made for use in the final print.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Two-Minute Warning" — A sensational, sick film in which a hidden sniper terrorizes the unsuspecting during a jam-packed championship professional football game in the Los Angeles Coliseum. Star-studded cast is wasted. (PG).

"The Next Man" — The Saudi Arabian representative to the United Nations falls in love with a beautiful American girl who belongs to an assassination team. Unfortunately there is not enough action to sustain the intrigue. Stars Sean Connery and Cornelia Sharpe. (R).

"Carrie" — A hated high school girl (Sissy Spacek) develops supernatural powers and uses them to get revenge on the whole town. Surprise ending by Brian De Palma rockets everyone from their seats. Also stars Piper Laurie as a religious fanatic. (R).

"Norman . . . Is That You? — Redd Foxx and Pearl Bailey discover their son's a homosexual and try their hardest to straighten him out in an extended situation comedy that keeps its sights — and the offensive level of its humor — aimed appropriately low. PG).

"Bugsy Malone" — Ingeniously conceived, beautifully mounted musical parody of the 1930s gangster film, played in perfect scale by an all juvenile cast. A great technical achievement with a rousing musical score by Paul Wiliams. Should delight adult and child alike. (G).

"I Will, I Will . . For Now" — Elliott Gould and Diane Keaton play a pair of sexually incompatible divorcees who make one last effort to get back together in a featherweight marital comedy from writer-director Norman Panama. Although the plot hinges on relatively current components like sex clinics and contract marriages, it's still old-hat. (R).

Real issues in 'Next Man' trivialized by nonsense

by DAVID DUGAS
(A review)

If you accepted Sean Connery as a Scots-burred Berber in "The Wind and the Lion," there is no reason not to believe him as a Saudi Arabian minister of state, even when he gets up at the U.N. and proposes Arabs and Israelis get it all together for lasting peace.

Smart chap that he is, he will figure out that beautiful Cornelia Sharpe, perfect companion for a Bahamas weekend, really is a hit woman for shadowy international powers.

DIRECTOR RICHARD Sarafian in "The Next Man" has taken as his framework the Middle East muddle — Israelis, Arabs, Palestinian terrorists, oil embargos, even the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — but to no avail.

Dates and times of day appear on the screen intermittently along with fresh datelines — New York, Moscow, London, Riyadh, Dublin, The Austrian Alps, Nice, New Jersey — as reminders that "The Next Man" is timely drama right out of tormorrow's headlines.

It might have been if Sarafian had made it with intelligence instead of an air travel card. Lacking tension, the movie comes off as nothing more than a cluttered potboiler that trivializes real issues with boring nonsense.

"The Next Man" is a Martin Bregman production from Allied Artists and is rated R.

Good home-style cooking refuels antique browsers

There's no scrimping on good, home-style cooking at the Hobson House Restaurant.

Located on McHenry Road in the heart of Long Grove, Hobson House is a friendly place where buffet luncheon is served 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Many customers who come to the village to browse through the gift and antique shops stop at the restaurant for lunch and a welcome rest.

"Home cooking" is the specialty of the Hobson House, says general manager Richard Smevold. Ham and cheese strata, Swedish meatballs, filet of sole and lasagne are popular dishes.

The day my friend and I visited Hobson House, chicken Tetrazzini and meatloaf and gravy joined lasagne as buffet entrees. First, however, we hit the salad bar.

WE BEGAN BY selecting a lemon gelatin and whipped cream salad. Proceding down the line, we added a tasty macaroni salad, grated carrot and raisin salad, coleslaw, potato salad, sliced cucmbers, beet salad and bean salad. Cinnamon rolls complemented this course.

Having eaten our hearts out in salad, we returned to the buffet table for a sampling of the chicken Tetrazzini and other featured entrees including winter squash and applesauce.

Too full to ask for dessert, we nevertheless listened to the list of available pies and other freshly baked goodies.

Our waitress brought tea and coffee. Her cheerfulness, the holiday decor and the view of a nearby indoor garden added to the over-all enjoyment of our lunch.

The best part of the meal was our bill, only $3.76 apiece. We noticed that several customers bought homemade rolls and pieces of pie to take home with them. Desserts generally are priced 75 cents and higher.

"WE STILL CONSIDER Hobson House a tearoom," said Smevold. The restaurant had been known as Hobson House when his parents, Herbert and Ann Smevold, bought it 14 years ago. They kept the name but decided to change its service and specialties to highlight home cooking. Richard Smevold has managed Hobson House for the past 10 years, though his parents still carry out the baking and hostess service several months during the year.

Hobson House hosts private parties and receptions in the evening but otherwise is open to the public for luncheons only.

The menu, however, remains varied, thanks to cook Anne Loraas, who occasionally will turn out hazelnut tortes or chocolate blintzes.

A small gift section of music boxes, metal sculpture and other items are also featured at Hobson House.

to run. Deer roam the surrounding woods.

A look of horror crossed Carol's face. "Sometimes people shoot at the deer through the fence. They can't even get to them — they just shoot them for the fun of it!"

IN 1974, MORE than 1,500 people gathered for an International Symposium to determine what wildlife is becoming extinct, what is left. Marlin Perkins was chairman. Mutual of Omaha subsidized it. "They not only sponsor Wild Kingdom — they truly believe in it," said Mrs. Perkins.

Marlin has just returned from Iran where the Wild Kingdom crew worked on a story on ibex and Ural sheep. Before that he was in northern Australia for a program on the sea-going crocodile.

"I hope you never retire," said one of the autograph seekers at Nature House Gallery as he moved to the head of the line.

"Well, nobody's talking about it," responded Perkins with a long, hearty laugh.

Mel Torme in the Blue Max

Never lets his fans down

Night out

Mel Torme holds irrefutably to his reputation as an entertainer who never gives a bad performance.

He is appearing twice nightly through Dec. 11 in the Hyatt Regency O'Hare's Blue Max showroom.

Torme, who remains one of the classiest singers today, wraps his audience in a warm, musical blanket and never lets go during an hour-and-10-minute performance.

Some of his material is predictable, including his traditional composition of "The Christmas Song," but then, so is his high calibre of showmanship.

Not only does Torme amaze the audience with his vocal range and control, he also demonstrates his superb musicianship by conducting a 14-piece band that plays only his arrangements.

EVER SINCE HE ran away from his South Chicago home at 16 to join Chico Marx' orchestra, Torme has enthralled his fans with his almost inhuman ability to sing, arrange, compose and play piano and drums — all with the highest skill.

One of the high points of the show is a tribute to Gene Krupa, at which time Torme plays a set of drums he said once belonged to the late drummer.

Another show-stopper is a 10-minute medley of music from MGM films, including "Blue Moon," "The Best Things in Life Are Free" and "Singin' in the Rain."

Mel Torme

But Torme doesn't stick to old songs. He displays his versatility with a slow, torchy arrangement of Neil Sedaka's "Breaking Up Is Hard to Do."

THE ONLY disappointment of the evening is a juvenile comedy act by Glenn Super, who bills himself as a musical satirist. His performance of the theme songs from the Jetsons and Flintstones cartoon shows matched the intellectual level of his act.

But Torme quickly warms up the audience the minute he walks on stage. The wait is well worth it.

—Nancy Gotler

"Afoot" closes

It is unfortunate when a long-running show is forced to close simply because management and the union boss cannot meet on common ground. The audience supporting the theater has nothing to say about it, nor do the actors on stage.

Yet continuous harassment by John Van Eyck, Midwest regional director of Actors' Equity, is forcing the Chateau Louise Resort in Dundee to close "Something's Afoot" this Sunday, according to Robert M. Fredericks, chief executive officer of the Gaslight Clubs, Inc., which also includes the hotel resort complex.

FREDRICKS, WHO called Van Eyck "strictly a union man" and "anti-theater," said "it is impossible to do business with the man and the theater will be forced in the future to use only non-Equity actors.

"I have no dispute with actors Equity and, in fact, have worked with that organization for many years. However, I will use non-Equity performers from now on solely because Van Eyck is impossible to work with," said Fredricks.

Though no specific abuses were cited by Fredricks, he called Van Eyck "uncooperative" and "dictatorial" and said there "was a complete breakdown in communication." Van Eyck, he charged, would never return his calls. Even a plea by the entire cast who went down en masse to meet and talk with Van Eyck, was ignored, he added.

"Frankly, I don't know what his problem is," said Van Eyck, who said that several minor disputes, including overdue welfare payments by the Chateau Louise Resort to the union, were in arbitration. "But you run into those with any contractual arrangement," he added.

VAN EYCK SAID he could be making the same claims against Fredricks because "he does not return calls to the union business representative handling the arbitration."

"Something Afoot" first opened Nov. 21 of last year. "Mousetrap," the premiere production at the theater, also ran a year. When many Chicago area theaters are having trouble even drawing a box office for a six-week run, it's disheartening to see a theater lose out just because of red tape.

But the Chateau Louise theater won't be dark for long.

"From the Second City: 17th Anniversary Show," presented by the Second City Touring Company, will open Wednesday, Dec. 15.

The satirical review will present some of the best scenes performed by the company during its 17-year history. If you've never seen Second City perform, now is your chance. They've never disappointed me yet.

Windsor Woods youths stage Christmas musical

The Windsor Woods Junior League, a club for boys and girls aged 8 through 17 living in the Windsor Woods apartment complex in Arlington Heights, has many activities under way, and one of great interest to members is drama and dancing.

Now in its second year of entertainment production, the group will present its fifth play this month. "Once Upon a Christmas Time," a musical tale, will be staged Saturday for families and friends of Windsor Woods in the complex clubhouse. The show starts at 8 p.m.

THE MUSICAL will be repeated Dec. 11 for the residents of Little City in Palatine and again Dec. 22 at the Americana Healthcare Center, Arlington Heights.

Last year's Christmas show, "Gift of Light," was also performed at Americana and was so well received the young thespians returned there this past June with a musical dance show entitled "The Bus Stop Revue."

Other activities of the Junior League include arts and crafts, car washes, parties, workshops and seminars. Betty Riedel, a resident of the complex, is the League's director.

Appearing as Orphan Annie's Sandy

Dog pound mutt becomes a star

by JAMES V. HEALION

Six months ago, he was leading a g's life, but fate made Sandy a star. ow he's cozying up to goody two-oe types like that incorrigible brat, 'l Orphan Annie, and her pals.

They are all right out of the comic rips: Daddy Warbucks, the world's chest man who minted money as a ar profiteer; Punjab, the tall turnned Oriental giant who goes ound with a scimitar stuck in his mmerbund, and that sly trickster in ack replete with homburg, The Asp.

THE WHOLE RAFFISH bunch got gether this summer in East Hadm, Conn., for the Goodspeed Opera ouse production of "Annie," but they ere stuck for a dog to play the part Annie's sidekick, Sandy. Actually, e never kicks Sandy.

They found a 15-month old mixed breed at the Connecticut Humane Society in Newington.

It raises the question: Do you know where your dog is tonight?

It's as if the Harold Grey comic strip that mesmerized millions of pretelevision kids for 30 years came to life. Sandy was about to be put under when, as Annie would say, "Leapin' Lizards!," the Goodspeed arrived in the nick of time.

"I LOOKED OVER several possibilities and then I saw this skinny, cringing dog that nobody wanted. He obviously had been abused by his former owner . . . I could see he was the dog we were looking for," said Bill Berloni, a technical assistant who became Sandy's offstage master.

Sandy proved to be an apt pupil. And speaking of pupils, few had any in Grey's comic strip. They all wore blank stares, including Sandy, described as "startingly intelligent" even though all he ever said was "Arf, Arf!"

You could translate that any way you wanted and that's what the comic strip characters did — even the mighty Warbucks, Annie's occasional guardian, who talked to him a lot.

ANYWAY, Sandy got the hang of acting, and well-fed and well-loved by the folks at Goodspeed, including 12-year-old Andrea McArdle who plays Annie, he stole the show.

He's on stage twice. Once as curly-mopped Annie protects him from a New York street bully. What else? And again when he pops out of a box at Christmas, a gift from Daddy Warbucks to Annie.

The show, according to Max Eisen, the Goodspeed's agent in the Big Apple, "is a viable thing for the spring season. It's supposed to go in production on or about the first of the year with an opening in Washington, and come to Broadway in March or April, but nothing has been finalized."

The play was adapted from the Li'l Orphan Annie comic strip, created in 1924 by Grey, a midwesterner and Purdue graduate who espoused an ultra-right political philosophy.

THROUGH THE years, the implication of Grey's strip was that when all else fails, it's okay for the virtuous or their powerful leaders — in this case Warbucks — to bend the law in the struggle between good and evil.

One authority said that, in its simplest form, this meant "the decisions and actions of the elect are unimpeachable," which makes one wonder just who among the Watergate cast may have been Li'l Orphan Annie fans.

About that, Sandy would definitely say this: "Arf, Arf!"

(United Press International

"SANDY," A 15-MONTN-OLD mixed breed, pops out of a box at Christmas to be greeted by Andrea McCardle (Annie) in the musical "Annie," adapted from the Li'l Orphan Annie comic strip.

Even healthy heart can beat irregularly

I have had a problem with my heart jumping and feeling as if it is turning over and as if it is coming right up to my throat. This is not a rapid beat of just a flutter but real hard beats. I've had this occasionally for some time, but recently, since I had a bad fall, the problem is daily and wakes me up at night. It sometimes lasts three hours. This leaves me feeling very weak and I've become very depressed.

My doctor does not seem too alarmed about it though he has given me several electrocardiograms, but never when one of the spells occurred. He only found that my heart was skipping some so he put me on Inderal.

I would like your opinion of the seriousness of this problem and if there is a faster acting medication. Should I limit my activities with this problem?

Even though I only weigh 97 pounds, I have a cholesterol problem and control my diet all the time.

There is no substitute for an actual record of an irregularity of the heartbeat to help a doctor make a diagnosis. The fact that you have irregular beats on your ECG suggests that the persistent hard beats may be from the same cause.

In judging the importance of irregularities of the heart one has to consider the rest of the patient's medical status. They do occur commonly in normal healthy people. Skipped beats that feel like the heart is turning over as you describe it often occur in people with no heart disease. On the other hand, their presence in a patient with a recent heart attack is very important and requires immediate treatment.

To give you a better concept of what irregularities mean I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardia. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Inderal is a good medicine and is often sufficient to control heart irregularities. If you don't get success or sufficient control with it, your doctor may want to use some other medicine, but give it a chance first.

Meanwhile, you can increase your potassium intake as that sometimes helps. I would suggest a couple of 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day. I suspect your weight and cholesterol can tolerate this addition.

If you use coffee, alcohol or cigaretes, I would advise discontinuing them.

I run cross-country and track and I've heard that eating peanuts during one's training period is bad for health. I would like to hear your view. I have been been doing your leg exercises to build up my legs and I feel as if they are stronger.

If your digestive system tolerates peanuts without causing you discomfort, they are not likely to hurt you.

Remember that about 70 per cent of the calories in peanuts are from fat. They do contain a lot of calories. A person who needs to eliminate or control body fat should not eat many of them in the interest of controlling calorie intake. If a cross-country runner is overweight, he usually does better if he eliminates any excess fat he might have.

Fertilizer better than salt for melting ice

Dear Dorothy: My mother has moved to be with her sister in Minnesota where sidewalks often get icy. She asked me to find out if it is bad to use salt on the walks. Can you help? —Doris Crowley.

Salt can be used, but it has to be removed with care. If it gets onto nearby vegetation, it can ruin it. Also, certain types of pavement break up over a period when salt is permitted to stay on it. An ideal thing to use is one of the urea-form fertilizers that not only melt ice, but help grass and flowers when swept over them.

Dear Dorothy: Here's one that may help others. We had a delicious steak for dinner, but there wasn't enough left for any repeat meal. I cut the remaining meat into pieces, cooked this gently with half a pound of mushrooms and a package of snow peas. This took only a few minutes and I then added a little water, corrected the seasoning and served it over rice. Delicious! — Mrs. J. C. Mueller.

Dear Dorothy: I was interested in the problem of the reader who said her clothes mildewed if she didn't iron them soon after being sprinkled. After years of the same problem and trying the refrigerator bit, I hit on the perfect solution. Instead of dampening clothes ahead of time, I spray as I iron. This way you can iron as much as you wish at a time and the load turns out beautifully. —Mrs. Lorene Wood

Dear Dorothy: Which is the best way to store green-tipped bananas — in the plastic bag, or out in the open? I don't want them to all ripen at the same time. — Sue Berger

Bananas give off a gas and, as a result, they ripen faster when kept in any kind of enclosed bag.

So you want to be a sportswriter

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

What makes a sportswriter tick? From where do they come, these scribblers who are envied by some and abused by others? What are the requirements, the qualifications for what those who practice it call a profession?

Young Bill Borst of Mount Prospect is curious.

"Dear Sir: As a student of River Trails Junior High, I am studying careers. Please send me any information about the job of a sportswriter for your paper. Also, I would like to know what training and educational requirements are needed. Thank you for your time."

THANK YOU, Bill, for your letter. You will be receiving some material in the mail, but I thought I would also take this way to answer some of your questions.

There were some fifth graders at the Kensington school in Arlington Heights who asked some of the same questions this week in their newspaper class. Maybe this will help them too.

I know exactly what is on their minds when these young people ask those questions. They pick up the sports pages of any paper, and they see a sportswriter covering baseball or football or basketball or hockey or many other events. This seems like a glamorous thing to be doing with your life. Imagine getting paid for it!

You're right, kids. I can't blame you. This can be a very glamorous profession, very frustrating at times but very exciting.

THE SPORTSWRITER is sometimes an ex-athlete, more often a frustrated athlete. Perhaps this failure to make it as a player directed him or her through the back door.

I believe sportswriting is a noble profession, and I appreciate the opportunity to do it for a living.

Many years ago I hesitated giving advice because I didn't feel I was qualified. I didn't want to sound like one more parent, one more teacher.

After over 20 years in the sportswriting business I guess I can sound like one more parent, one more teacher.

1. GO TO college!

That sounds logical, but it can't be emphasized enough. This just isn't some more preaching. A college education today is almost a necessity to becoming a writer.

This is a tough thing to tell young people, particularly those of high school age. They look at you and say: "What good does studying Latin or algebra have to do with writing sports?"

You have to use your mind in study and in time your mind develops. When it comes time to start writing, your mind is sharpened.

Although some newspapers would rather hire only journalism majors, I'm still not that sure it is necessary if you want to be a sportswriter. I feel English or history or some allied field will do just as well. Again, anything that makes you use your mind, sharpen your mind.

2. WRITE for the school paper. Write as much as you can.

You have to learn the craft some place. It's one thing just to talk about writing. Remember, writing is not easily acquired. You have to sit down and do it.

I remember writing stories as a 10-and 11-year-old for a baseball game played with cards. I would keep box scores and then write up short stories.

Classroom theory is fine, but you have to get out there and do it. Watch a game on television or listen on the radio. Write up a story and then compare it with the one that appears in your morning newspaper.

3. GET a job on a newspaper, no matter how small the paper is, or how small the job is.

I know this is easier said than done, but it is very important to get some idea of the newspaper business — how it feels, what it looks like, the touch. Try it. You may not like it.

A newspaper office is hardly a romantic setting. If you're looking for rows of offices for executives, each neatly arranged, plush carpeting and picture windows, then try something else.

The conditions in newspaper offices are — shall we say — basic.

4. READ, read, read! And read some more!

I don't mean just sports material. You will do enough of that anyway.

Sports pages should be a minimal part of your reading as you grow up. Reading for pleasure is an effortless way of becoming a better writer. Benefits reaped are without conscious effort.

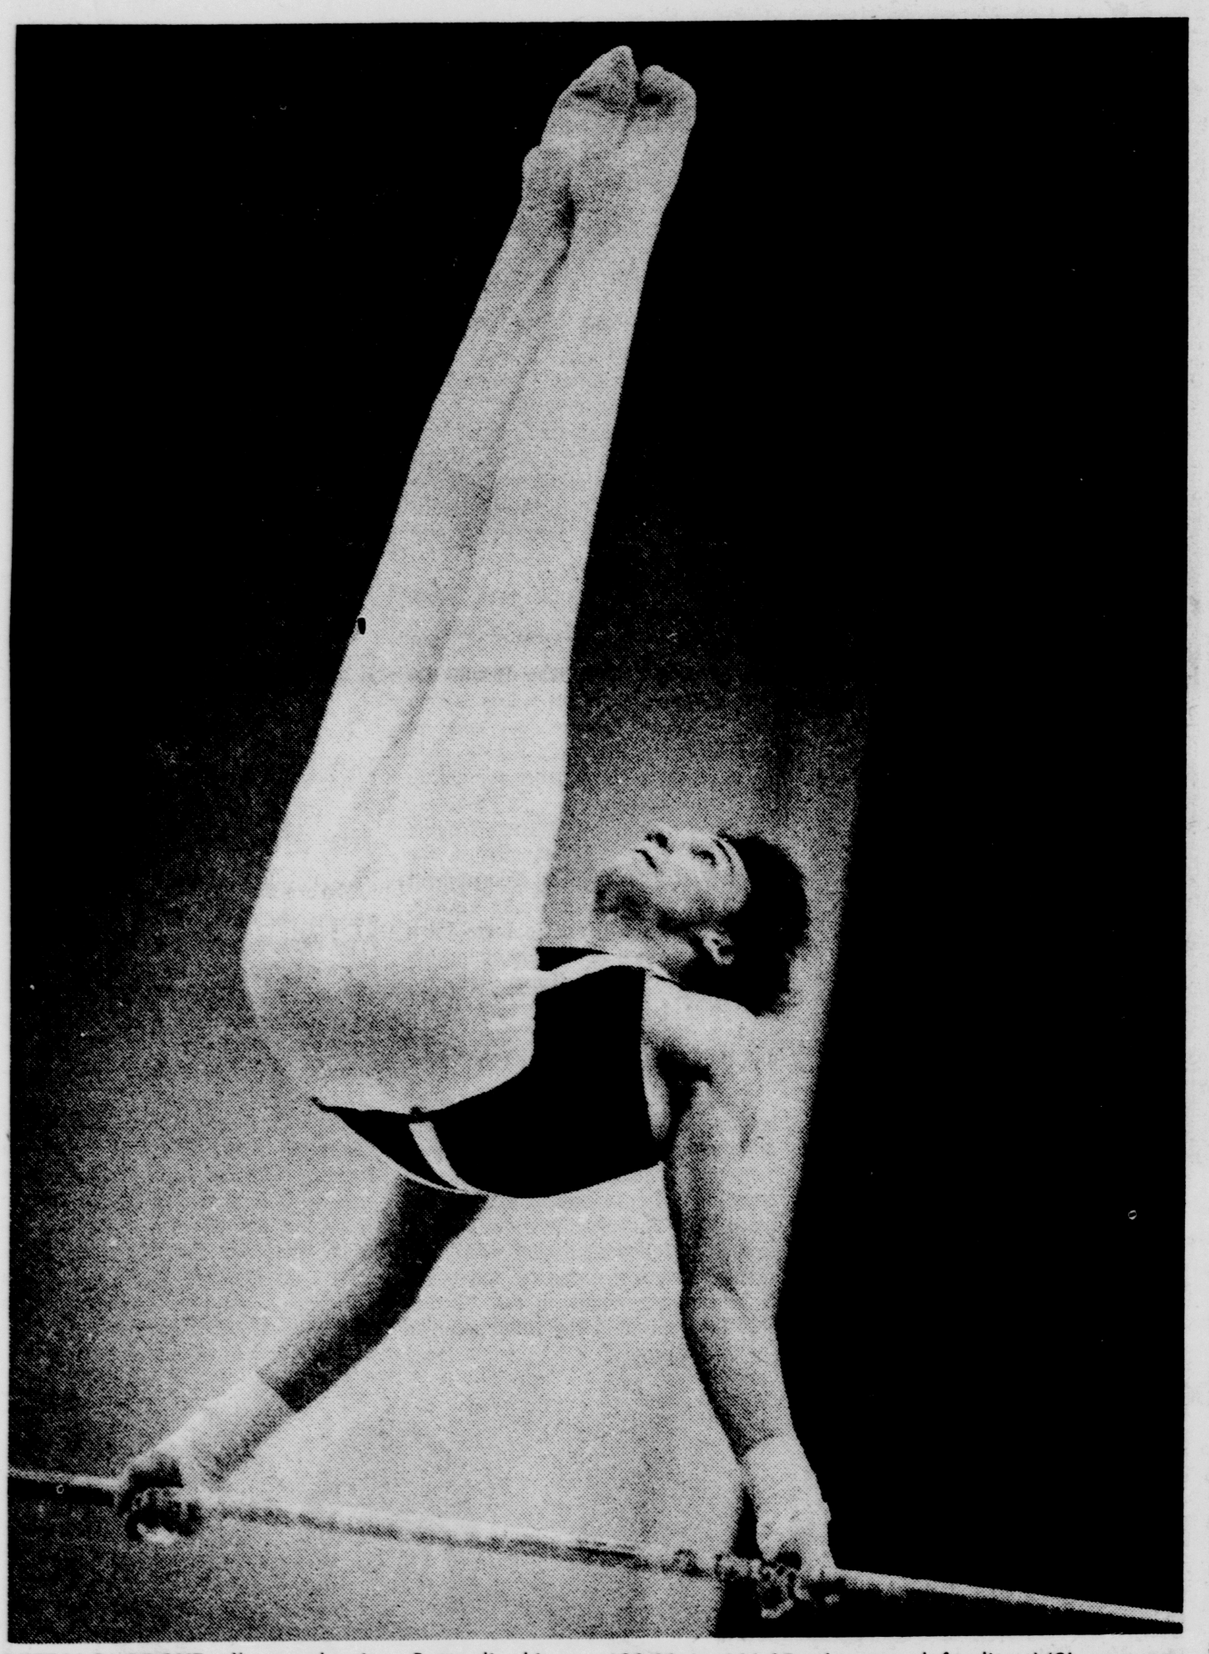
So read histories and biographies and fiction . . . things other than sports. Never stop reading even in your adult life.

THERE ARE other ways to approach the profession of sportswriting, but this is a start.

Like sport itself, sports journalism was often regarded as mere entertainment, the amusement section of any newspaper.

The complexion of sport has changed, however, and with it the face of sportswriting.

It can be fun, kids, but it's not all fun and games.



BUFFALO GROVE all-arounder Lee Battaglia hit a 6.98 average Thursday night to lead the Bison to a 120.98 to 111.35 win over defending MSL gymnastics champion Elk Grove.

Harper impressive in basketball romp

by RICK CHRISTOPHER

Breaking what was once known as a solid Oakton zone defense apart at its seams, the Harper Hawks (2-2) rolled to their second straight win 101-70 Thursday night at the St. Viator gymnasium.

Harper faced the zone defense for the first time this season, and easily ballooned a slim seven-point halftime margin beyond reach within the first two minutes of the second half. Eight unanswered points in the early going led to the Hawks 63-point outburst.

"We got off to a good start in the second half with some balanced scoring and just tried to hit the open man. We didn't try to force a thing," Coach Rober Bechtold said. "We worked hard and just let things happen . . . and they did.

"OAKTON HAS won 20 games the past two seasons with its zone defense and I honestly thought we would have trouble with it. But we just kept our poise, penetrated and gave off to the open man."

Tied at 2-all in the first minute of play, Harper made its early move into the Oakton zone defense with accurate passing, close range shots and balanced scoring.

Guard Jim Arden helped pad a 15-point margin, 32-17, at 6:10 of the first half with a pair of eight-footers off the right key. Arden scored 12 of his team high 21 points in the first half. Forward Mike Nichol scored eight points in the opening 20 minutes of play, while Jim Hanks and Ron Sulaski contributed six each.

"They (team) played the most unselfish ball game of their lives tonight," Coach Bechtold said. "They'd have rather passed off than take the shot themselves."

BECOMING A bit too cautious at the close of the half, Harper saw its 15-point margin dwindle to seven behind the scoring of Oakton center Mike Chrzan. The 6-foot-6 pivotman totaled 10 of his game high 22-points within a five-minute span.

Harper's comeback in the second half is remarkable in itself as it nearly doubled its first half output with 63 uoints. The Hawks shot a sound 58 per cent in the second half, making 22 of their 38 shots from the floor.

South's basketball chase begins with three games

by ART MUGALIAN

Elk Grove basketball coach Ken Grams has put just three games under his belt in his first year at the Grenadier command, but he isn't a greenhorn when it comes to the ways of the Mid-Suburban South.

"Conant seems to lose their first game or two every year," said Grams, an assistant coach at Elk Grove until this season. "Then the bell rings for conference play and they're tough."

Grams and his Grens, off to an 0-3 start, are hosting defending South champ Conant (0-1) tonight at 8:00 as the South Division kicks off the conference schedule with a trio of games.

Prospect (1-3) visits Rolling Meadows (2-1) and Forest View (2-2) hosts Schaumburg (0-3) in the other games, both set for 8 p.m.

"That doggone (Dick) Redlinger — you have to watch him," cracked Grams, referring to the Conant coach. "He seems to do it every year."

Conant will be without 6-foot-5 center Ed MacDonald, who is out, perhaps for the whole season, with knee surgery. And 5-11 guard Rob Totten is doubtful for tonight's matchup.

"They've still got some good, strong kids," Grams allowed.

Conant's "traditional" opening loss was an 80-39 rout at the hands of a powerful Fenton team. Redlinger was quick to put the memory of that game behind him.

"We're going to be okay when we get some of our kids back," said the Cougar coach.

Redlinger hopes to have Totten in the lineup at Elk Grove. If not, the spot will be filled by 6-0 junior Rocky Pugliese.

"Totten sure makes a difference for us," said Redlinger. "Instead of just throwing the ball around a zone, Totten penetrates — he moves the ball to the basket."

Conant's main worry tonight will be 6-5 Elk Grove center Mark Smith. The husky senior averaged 16 points per contest in the three-game Hoffman Thanksgiving tourney.

"Elk Grove likes to get the ball inside to Smith," Redlinger said. "We think if we can keep it away from him and make their guards shoot from outside then we might have a chance."

Grenadiers Dave Champa and Tim Mimnaugh have shown occasional flurries of outside accuracy, especially in a 67-57 loss to Addison Trail Friday night. But Grams is still concerned about his team's shooting.

"We're going to have to shoot the ball better," he said. "That's what we've been working on all week. I

Murtaugh loses fight

Danny Murtaugh

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Former Pittsburgh Pirates Manager Danny Murtaugh, who retired just two months ago so he could spend more time with his grandchildren, died Thursday night, two days after suffering a stroke.

Murtaugh led the Pirates to two world championships and three other divisional titles during 15 years and four different stints as field manager. Named three times Manager of the Year by his peers, was as well known for his pugnacious wit as for his managing prowess.

A chew of tobacco stuffed into a cheek of his wrinkled, prizefighter-like face was his trademark. He punctuated his frequent practical jokes by spitting the juice from the plug at the subject of his teasing.

Murtaugh, whose 15-year tenure as the Bucs' skipper was plagued with illness and heart problems, had come out of retirement three different times to manage.

Murtaugh said poor health had as much to do with his retirement as his desire to watch his grandchildren grow up.

Wildcats soar in MSL gym

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

It may be too early to tell, but the Wheeling Wildcats seem to be in the mood to turn the Mid-Suburban League gymnastics picture on its ear as they opened conference action with a 135.93 to 133.64 win over Rolling Meadows Thursday.

Buffalo Grove, picked as the favorite in the North Division, opened with a 120.98 to 111.35 win over defending MSL champ Elk Grove and Hersey had an easy time with Hoffman Estates 121.76 to 58.15.

In other meets Arlington topped Conant 104.61 to 88.2, Fremd got a win for new coach Tom Potter, edging Forest View 97.38 to 92.99 and Prospect opened their season with a 102.90 to 91.19 triumph over Palatine.

WHEELING GOT solid all-around work from Jeff Vanyek (6.98) and Dino Manua (6.33) to post their narrow win over Meadows.

"We were vastly improved over our first meet," said Wildcat coach Dave Watters. "I really think these kids will hit 140 soon."

Meadows' Glenn Johnson (8.4) and Tom Sidor (8.35) dominated the trampoline.

All-arounder Lee Battaglia won individual honors on three events to post a 6.98 average in Buffalo Grove's win over Elk Grove.

"LEE IS GOING to improve with every meet," said Bison coach Denny Mazur. "He'll be an 8.0 all-arounder by the end of the year."

Elk Grove led after the side horse event with the efforts of Bob Beaupre and Mike Peters.

Hersey coach Don Von Ebers remarked, "There is no doubt this is a down year for us. But, although I wasn't satisfied with some of the routines, I'm glad we're starting at this level so we can work from here."

Jim Huck controlled the all-around for the Huskies with a 6.61 average. Phil Braverman averaged 4.73 as Hoffman's all-arounder.

RICHARD KROPP'S 7.1 on free ex was the highest individual score in the meet.

Arlington senior Tom Staley, who reached the state finals last year, took up where he left off with an 8.35 on the rings as the Cardinals turned back Conant.

The Cougars' Fred Weihmuller won the all-around, nipping Arlinton's Rob Erickson 5.0 to 4.86.

Ron Bakken of Palaatine took the all-around title in the Pirates' meet with Prospect but the Knights' better depth ruled.

Bakken averaged 5.33 for the five events to top Prospect's Stewart Kohnke (4.3) and Jeff Sharratt (4.13).

BRIAN HULKA (7.8 on rings) and Rob Armstrong (7.65 on tramp) were Prospect's strongest specialists.

Paul Jacobs fired a 7.8 free ex routine for Palatine.

Fremd's Tom Potter received a nice welcome to the MSL as his Vikings rode the 6.83 all-around average of Dave Smidl to a win over Forest View.

The Vikings will improve further when Dave's brother, Doug, returns to all-around duty. Doug hit 8.35 on the horse.

DARIO CRUZ hit a 7.6 to win the still rings for Forest View.

Trojans, Wolves top UPI All-Americans

NEW YORK — Second-ranked Southern California and third-ranked Michigan, which will meet in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, led the individual talent parade Thursday by naming three players each to the 1976 United Press International All-America college football team.

The Trojans, who posted a 10-1 record en route to the Pacific Eight championship, placed running back Ricky Bell, offensive tackle Marvin Powell and defensive tackle Gary Jeter on the 23-man first team while the once-beaten Wolverines were represented by running back Rob Lytle, guard Mark Donahue and linebacker Calvin O'Neal.

Top-ranked Pittsburgh, 10th-ranked Texas A&M, 13th-ranked Notre Dame and 19th-ranked Nebraska each named two players to the team while Tennessee, Stanford, Rice, Wake Forest, Oklahoma, UCLA, Penn State, Oklahoma State and Georgia each had one player selected.

White Sox sign free agent

The Chicago White Sox Thursday night took advantage of a complex rule to sign free agent infielder Tim Nordbrook to a two-year contract, giving them their third reentry draft signing in the last two weeks.

Nordbrook, 27, played last year for both the Baltimore Orioles and the California Angels, while letting his option run out. The White Sox were one of six teams to negotiate with him while he was a free agent.

"He's a very fine defensive ballplayer and it gives you additional depth," said White Sox vice president Roland Hemond. "He hasn't been a strong hitter but he's played very little the last two years."

Houston wins 7th straight

In a very limited National Basketball Assn. schedule, Houston won its seventh straight over visiting Milwaukee and Washington snapped its five-game losing streak at Atlanta Thursday night.

Rudy Tomjanovich scored 38 points as the Houston Rockets set a Summit scoring record in a 137-110 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

Calvin Murphy added 26 for Houston and John Johnson had 20 as Houston scored 30 or more points in each quarter.

Paced by Len Robinson's career-high 33 points, Washington defeated the Atlanta Hawks 102-90.

It was the Bullets' first win on the road in eight tries.

Golden State and San Antonio played a late West coast game.

Montreal escapes with tie

Montreal rallied in the final 40 seconds to avoid a loss and Pittsburgh coasted to victory in the only National Hockey League action Thursday night.

Steve Shutt scored his 27th goal in 27 games to give the Montreal Canadiens a 3-3 tie with the visiting Los Angeles Kings.

The Kings, now 0-7-6 in their last 13 games, appeared headed for their first victory since Nov. 3 when Shutt banged a rebound past goalie Gary Edwards, who was playing in only his fifth game of the season.

Lew Morrison and Jean Pronovost scored second period goals and Denis Herron kicked out 39 shots in his first appearance of the season to lift the Pittsburgh Penguins to a 4-2 victory over the New York Islanders, their fourth straight loss at home.

Norton to fight; Ali too . . .

DENVER (UPI) — Aides to heavyweight boxer Ron Lyle Thursday said the Denver fighter and Ken Norton had signed an agreement to meet in Madison Square Garden sometime in February.

Lyle is tentatively ranked fifth by the World Boxing Association and Norton is the No. 2 contender, depending on whether champion Muhammad Ali sticks to his decision to quit boxing.

Ali will or will not come out of his "retirement" to defend his heavyweight title against Duane Bobick Feb. 26 in Madison Square Garden, John Condon, the Garden's president of boxing, said Thursday night.

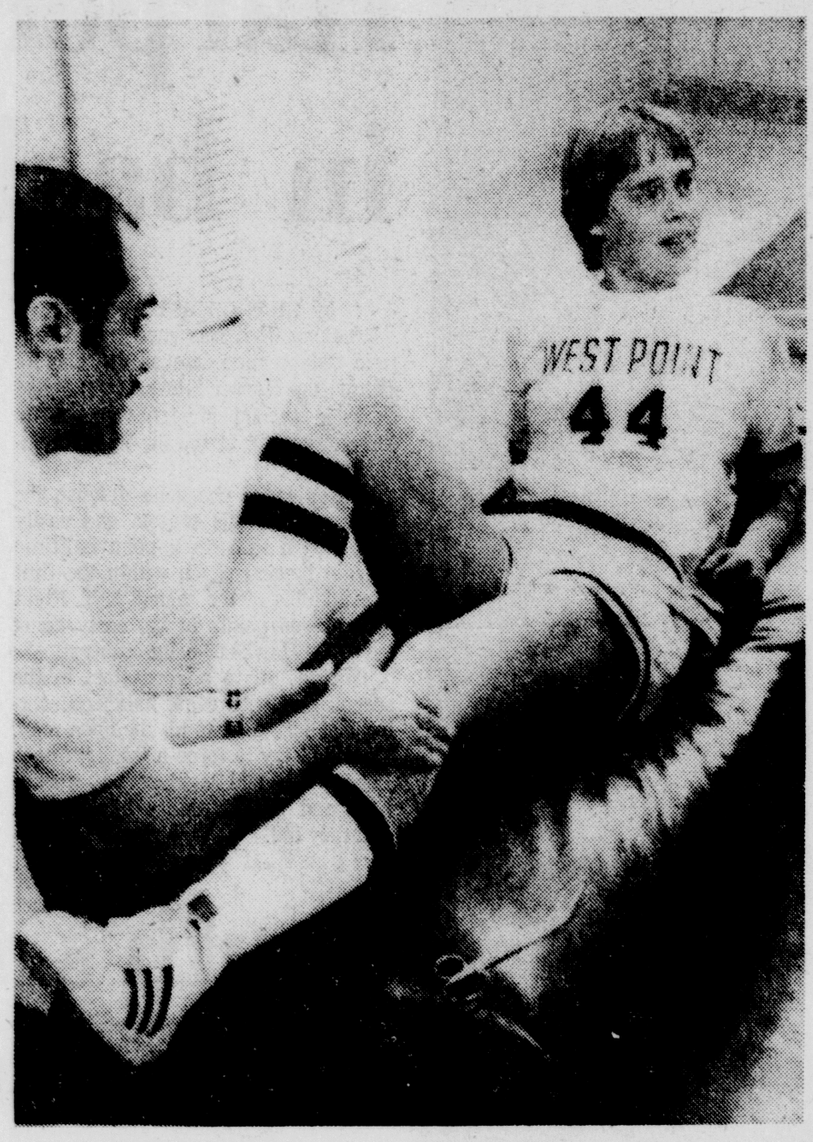
And in other sports news. . .

A University of Arkansas athletic department official Thursday said Frank Broyles has decided to resign as football coach during "a weaker moment" and could be convinced to continue if the Razorbacks defeat Texas on Saturday. Reached by UPI, Broyles said of the resignation talk: "I have no comment on that. The options are not final, and when they are, I'll let the decision be known."

Left-hander Mike Kekich's condition was reported improved by Venezuelan doctors who performed emergency surgery Sunday to remove a damaged spleen. Kekich was accidentally injured by teammate Clarence Gaston during a scuffle in a game in the Venezuelan winter baseball league . . .

Non-league basketball

Tourney winners battle



WEST POINT CENTER Carol Brakalow, a 5-foot-8 starter on the women's basketball team, receives some help from the Cadet trainer. Despite her leg injury, Brakalow helped lead her team to its first victory ever — 73-48 over Skidmore.

A couple of "turkey winners" will battle each other when the Arlington Cardinals play host to Loves Park-Harlem, a school from the Rockford area.

Harlem captured its own holiday tournament last week, matching the showing of Arlington at the York tourney.

"They've got one good shooting guard and a 6-foot-4 boy inside," said Coach George Zigman. "They are about the same size as we are."

The same Cardinals that played key roles in building a 4-1 season record will be starting in this non-conference game — Greg Kloiber, Frank De-Simone, Dave Kamps, Dan Frase and Tom North.

ARLINGTON IS already being mentioned as a formidable challenger to defending Mid-Suburban North champion Buffalo Grove. The Bison, the only MSL team without a loss at this early stage of the season, take on much-improved Hoffman Estates in a no-count, cross-over game tonight in Hoffman Estates.

Buffalo Grove, 4-0, is fresh from a title victory over Libertyville in the Niles West Thanksgiving Tournament last Saturday. The Hoffman Hawks, with a 2-2 record, fell to Lake Park the night before in the championship game of the Hoffman tourney. WWMM-FM (92.7) will broadcast the game at 8 p.m. Bruce Blair and Dan Trapani at the microphones.

In other nonconference games tonight, Palatine (1-3) hosts Loyola and Fremd (1-2) visits Elgin-Larkin.

Palatine should benefit from the continuing improvement of 6-5 forward Doug Buenzow, who got off to a slow start following a bout with pneumonia. Buenzow came off the bench to score nine points in the Pirates' loss to Warren in the final game of the Mundelein Tourney.

CRAIG RAWLINS will lead his Fremd teammates into the game at Larkin tonight. The 6-4 senior is averaging 16 points and 10 rebounds in the Vikings' first three games. Dale Hallberg, a 6-4½ senior, is scoring at a 14-point per game rate in the early going.

"Elgin-Larkin is tough up front," said Fremd coach Mo Tharp, who will be trying to duplicate last year's victory over the Royals. "They're pushing Mike Henry for all-state consideration, and he's a forward. And they've got a 6-5 guy playing center.

"So rebounding will have to be a major part of our game," Tharp continued. "We'll have to be sure to block out underneath and give them only one shot on offense."

Henry, a 6-9 senior, and his teammates have lost just one game so far, a 51-50 defeat at Barrington last week.

'New season' opens for Patriot cagers

The "new season" begins for Stevenson when the Patriots take on visiting Wauconda in a Northwest Suburban Conference opener tonight at 7:30.

Coach Bill Ebenezer's Pats warmed up for league playin the Glenbrook South holiday tourney, beating Sullivan (88-71) and losing to Kenwood (59-49) and Glenbrook South (75-62).

The Pats finished third behind NSC champion Woodstock and runner-up Antioch last year while recording the bets basketball record in the 11-year history of the school — 14-10. Co-captains who played a big role in last year's success are leading the Pats this season — 6-4 senior Mark Cordes and 6-2 senior Andy Farrissey.

West, South to battle tonight

The Maine West Warriors, trying to snap a three-game losing streak, go up against arch-rival Maine South for the second time in this young season tonight at the Hawks' gym.

After winning their opening contest, the Warriors have dropped their next three — by a total of only fiv points. A one-point loss to Maine South, then two-point losses to Prospect and New Trier East, ruined the Thanksgiving weekend for coach Gaston Freeman's group, who will be out for revenge tonight.

Tipoff time will be at approximately 8 p.m. at Maine South, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge.

World of Recreation store lives up to name

When the World of Recreation moved to its new 75,000 sq. ft. facility, it became the world's largest recreational and sporting goods store.

Featuring almost two acres of display space under one roof, the new World offers its customers an opportunity to purchase the goods of their choice. Before they buy, they can compare brands, quality, and costs, as well as see and touch, thousands of products.

The two people most responsible for the move to 280 W. North Ave., Addison, are Al Piemonte, President, and Scott Eckert, Vice-President, General Manager and a resident of Palatine. They felt the need to expand their space because they were unable to satisfy the demands of the growing recreational market.

"WE COULD NOT give our customers the service, selection, and quality they deserved in our old Melrose Park location," stated Eckert. "Because we had outgrown our 20,000 sq. ft., we had to move.

"As more and more people make time for recreational activities, there will be an increasing demand for both quality and value," Eckert continued.

"We have designed our new store as a one-stop shop. We can supply our customers with a complete, coordinated selection of equipment and accessories, no matter what sport or activity they choose," he said.

"We have made the commitment to providing our customers with the services and goods they deserve. In fact, we have so much confidence in this market, we have purchased our building."

BECAUSE OF THEIR combined 40 year experience in the automotive and recreational vehicle fields, Piemonte and Eckert can offer their customers expertise as well as product.

The RV department is the focal point of the store. Probably the world's largest interior retail display, it features 140 vehicles, including 50 boats. The total inventory has 330 vehicles and consists of motor homes, mini homes, trailers, campers, 5th wheels and a hundred boats. In addition to sales, the World has its own RV service department. It is staffed with factory-trained technicians.

In conjunction with the RV department, the World has diversified accessories which include a collection of electronic equipment. Available are CB's, radios, a full line of stereo equipment, and television for motorized vehicles as well as the home.

The World's selection of boats ranges from a light-weight canoe to a 30 ft. yacht that sleeps six. A unique feature of the store is that it carries both Johnson and Mercury motors. There is also a boating service department that contains its own test tanks.

IN ADDITION TO major RV's, the World has a comprehensive sporting goods and accessory division. It is divided by sport categories.

For example, the fisherman can find rods, reels, lines, and lures as well as outriggers, downriggers, and sophisticated electronic equipment such as depth and fish finders.

The World also features a complete selection for back-packers, campers, skiers, golfers, skin-divers, hunters, etc. Major equipment, clothing, and accessories are available for each category.

The people who staff the World are trained to help customers select the right products for their own individual objectives.

"WHEN CUSTOMERS want specific products, such as RV's, we ask many questions about use as well as budget. By providing us with diversified answers, we are able to offer them expert advice that will help them enjoy their equipment as well as save them money," Eckert stated.

In the future, the World will offer various activities that will make it a center for recreation. In addition to demonstrations and clinics, the World will offer club memberships to RV owners. They will be given hints and opportunities to enhance their travel experiences.

The World of Recreation is open seven days a week: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mon. through Fri.; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sat.; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sun. Major bank cards are accepted.

McDonald's, Bulls to team up for charity

The Association of Chicagoland McDonald's Restaurants and the Chicago Bulls are teaming up to honor youth-oriented Chicagoland and Northern Indiana charities.

Beginning with Saturday's Bulls home game with New Orleans, the McDonald's operators will award a cash donation equaling the number of points scored during each game by the Bulls, home and away, win or lose.

Announcement of the charity being honored will be made on radio station WIND during the game and also at Chicago Stadium when the Bulls are home. The actual cash award will be announced by Bulls announcer Jim Durham on the WIND Bulls post-game show.

A different charitable group will be honored each game, according to Harry Theodore, president of the Chicagoland McDonald's operators:

"We feel this is an excellent way to recognize youth oriented charities and at the same time be able to help them with a cash donation."

The association encompassing 170 stores, stretches northward from Chicago to Lake County, west to Aurora, southwest to LaSalle-Peru and east to LaPorte, Ind.

Team tops Midwest Open

The American Academy of Gymnastics, Inc. of Des Plaines captured the first place team trophy at the prestigious Senior Women's Midwest Open Gymnastics Championships held at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle.

Approximately 145 girls, representing universities and clubs throughout the country, saw the Academy girls score a winning total of 103.15 points followed by Indiana State University of Terre Haute (101.40), and Mid-Illinois Jets of Alton placing third (100.40).

Members of the team garnering the coveted prize were Laurie Birk, Christa Canary, Rickee Farrell, Peggy Mosher, Jackie Pakis, Nancy Quatrocki and Donna Silber of Mount Prospect.

Representing the Academy, 14-year-old Christa Canary spearheaded the drive with a first place all-around score of 36.20. She also won first on floor (18.70) followed by teammate Rickee Farrell who came in third (18.05).

Christa again took first on vault (18.80) with Peggy Mosher placing fourth (18.00), and Donna Silber sixth (17.90). On the uneven bars Canary tied Silber for fourth place (17.90), and placed fifth on beam (16.75).

South play opens in Mid-Suburban think we did a good job defensively against Addison Trail."

PROSPECT AT MEADOWS

Injuries and illness will play an important role in tonight's encounter at Rolling Meadows, where the host Mustangs bring out their 2-1 nonconference record, best in the South.

Dave Crouch of Meadows will be out with a broken nose suffered in the Fenton Tourney, and teammates Kevin Kiley, a 6-7 center, and Sam DeMarie are doubtful starters because of the flu-bug.

"Some days I've only had 10 kids at practice," said Mustang second-year coach Bill Weinberg.

Still, Weinberg was optimistic about his team's chances against the Knights.

"We think Prospect is the team to beat in the South," said Weinberg. "They've played some good competition and they've done fairly well. They play a couple of sophomores, so it might help us to catch them early in the season."

One of those sophs, 6-2 guard Jim Apuzzo, is leading the Knights in scoring with a 14-point average, but he too is doubtful tonight after suffering through a case of flu all week. Reserve guard Mike Wellov has the flu, also, and starting 6-4 center Brad Millar has a sore ankle and could be a bench-sitter against Meadows.

"I'm not sure what's going to happen with our starters," said Prospect's veteran coach, Bill Slayton.

Prospect suffered close losses to Evanston and New Trier East before dropping a lopsided affair to Maine South. The Knights' only win was over Maine West.

Slayton has been pleased with the play by Steve Mather and sophomore Dave LaCosse.

SCHAUMBURG AT FOREST VIEW

Forest View suffered through one of its worst seasons in recent memory last year when the Falcons were last in the South, but head coach Ted Wissen is optimistic that a fresh batch of talent can turn things around.

"We're young, but we hope to keep coming along," said Wissen, who starts three juniors. "So far, it's been a pretty balanced effort. We've had four in double-scoring in three of our four games.

The three Falcon juniors, led by 6-5 center Bob Cameron, have given Wissen reason for hope. Cameron and 6-3 forward Jeff Martinski are averaging 12 points per game and 5-11 guard Craig Chuipek has popped in eight points a game.

Seniors Chris Hanson, a 5-10 guard, and Jim Kennedy, a 6-3 forward, add some experience, especially Hanson, who saw plenty of varsity action last year.

Schaumburg, with one returning starter in 6-7 junior John Chmiel, sat out the holidays after losing three in a row in a tourney at Niles East.

"We saw Schaumburg play in that pre-Thanksgiving tourney," said Wissen. "They didn't look real good then, but we know they've got a good team developing. This Chmiel is a good one — possibly the best pure shooter in the league. And he's big too."

Along with Chmiel, who averaged 21 points per game in the Niles East tourney, the Saxons have a cast that includes 6-5 junior John Moran, 6-3 junior Jack Breen, and 5-10 sophomore guard Scott Wright.

MIKE HAEGER adjusts the net that allows Bears' placekicker Bob Thomas to practice kick along the sidelines during a game. Haeger, a Rolling Meadows High School student, works as a Bears' ballboy during the season.

Dream job

Mike Haeger makes jump from preps to pros

by BOB GALLAS

Mike Haeger, a 16-year-old Rolling Meadows High School junior, made the jump that few accomplish in football — high school directly to the pros.

A football manager at the school last year, Haeger now works as a ballboy for the Chicago Bears, strolling the sidelines every Sunday, doing what others his age merely dream of.

His job started back in July during training camp when he was awake every day by 6:30 a.m. and kept going until 6:30 p.m., sometimes longer. Setting up practice equipment, assisting coaches and even doing laundry were among his assigned tasks.

NOW, HE WORKS only the Sundays the Bears play at home, getting up at 4 a.m. for the drive to the Bears Lake Forest practice facility. From there, he'll get a ride with the equipment manager to Soldier Field where there'll be more preparations for the game.

"I'll polish helmets or shoes, or prepare the cold drinks that the players will have during the game," said Haeger, who preferes to work the bench area, handing out Gator-aide, to the more glamorous job of roaming the sidelines, keeping the officials supplied with game balls.

"I like being so near the players. You really get a feel of the game," he said.

The job has given Haeger some notoriety among his peers, who occasionally ask for tickets or autographs, requests he politely declines.

"I WON'T EVEN ask the players for autographs for me," he said. "They get enough of that from the fans. They don't need it from me."

For those long two months Haeger lived at the Lake Forest training camp during the summer, his pay was $10 a day and "the best food you could get anywhere." He's not paid for working Sundays, but he dan't think of anyplace else he'd rather be than the sidelines, pay or no pay.

Unlike his counterparts, Mike is unrelated to anyone on the Bears' staff. Though his father, who knew Bear general manager Jim Finks, helped him get the position, Mike just wrote a letter to Finks last May, asking for a job.

To his surprise, Finks wrote back, telling Mike he had the job.

HIS CO-WORKERS include Fink's nephew, George Halas' grandson and coach Jack Pardee's son.

Mike's only problem now is how to turn down an occasional teacher at school who asks for tickets.

"They joke around and say they're going to flunk me if I don't get them tickets. But they're just kidding — I think."

INSIGHT will open your eyes.

Fans' forum

Those 'keecks' are important

Fans Forum:

A couple of years ago, when the National Football League moved the goal posts back to the rear of the end zone, there was a lot of talk about how the move would minimize the role of the foreign-born influx of field goal kickers. Those guys that Alex Karras says go around shouting, "I keeck a touchdown!"

After all, that was supposed to be the reason for the move. Put the posts back ten yards and move the ball back to the line of scrimmage instead of the 20 after an unsuccessful attempt, and you'll scare the coaches into going for it instead of kicking dinky 15-yard field goals. That was the theory. It was going to make the game a whole lot more exciting.

What happened, though? Maybe there aren't as many field goals as there used to be (that only stands to reason because they're harder to kick;, but the importance of the place kickers hasn't changed.

If anything, their importance has increased. Now you have to have a darn good kicker who can kick that game-winner from 50 yards instead of 40. There's no more 15-yard field goals, but the number of game-winning kicks hasn't changed. It's also true that there are probably more punts because of the rule-change, but when the chips are down and the game is hanging in the balance, the coaches call on the "rug dealers" and the "ex-patriots."

BARRINGTON'S TOUGH

Dear Editor:

As a long and faithful fan of the Barrington Broncos, I want to say how anxious I am to see the Broncos play in the Mid-Suburban League. For so long I and my friends have had to put up with the kidding we gt from people in the bigger MSL conference. All along we've maintained that Barrington could hold their own in that league and now I think you'll find out.

I'm confident that the 1972 Barrington football team could have beaten "mythical state champ" Elk Grove, and I'm sure this year's team could have beaten anybody in the MSL. Our baseball teams and golf teams are among the best in the state, and as for basketball — well, I know that this year's team is going to be really tough.

Wait 'til next year.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH CUBS?

Fans Forum:

What's the matter with the Cubs' front office? All their fans want is a pennant and what do the Cubs do? They go out and get a new manager. I don't understand what was wrong with Jim Marshall. For that matter, I don't know what was wrong with Whitey Lockman or Leo Durocher.

Pennants aren't won in the dugout and they're not won in the front office. They're won on the playing field by a good team of good players. That seems to be something that the Cubs will never learn. They never take the time or money to develop a farm system and they never seem willing to trade for good talent.

Lowest priced car in America. That's "The Answer." A new car that costs less than many used cars. And "The Answer" has something no one else has—unbeatable Toyota toughness at an unbeatable tough price.

Highest gas mileage car in America. That's "The Answer." Gas mileage no one else can match. In 1977 EPA tests "The Answer" got 49 mpg on the highway, 36 in the city. These ratings with a 1.2 liter engine are estimates.

The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment.

How did Toyota come up with "The Answer"? We started with the durable, proven Corolla and eliminated some of the luxury features. But we didn't touch the car's quality. You'll still find things like welded unitized-body construction, steel guard door reenforcements and McPherson Strut front suspension. This special car became "The Answer." A car that's inexpensive, not cheap. A car that carefully retains the toughness that's a part of the Toyota tradition. See your Toyota dealer today. He's the only one who can show you "The Answer."

Robert Byrd, an outstanding Chicago Public League player, was the only recruited freshman.

Lavin transferred from Fremd to East Leyden for his senior year where he started for the Eagles in the backcourt nearly the entire season. The Eagles were the No. 1 ranked team until they were upset in the state tournament.

How do you write about fumbles, missed kicks?

Jim Murray

Well, that settles one thing. God isn't Irish.

Where in the world is George Gipp when you need him? Us again, huh, Lord? Let me ask you one thing: when is it the Protestants' turn?

I want a show of hands out there. How many of you guys missed Mass? Don't give me that stuff about the "luck of the Irish." If these guys are always that lucky, I hope I never get in a lifeboat next to them. But I'd sure like to get in a crap game with them.

WHATEVER HAPPENED to "One-Play" O'Brien? What we got now is "One-Fumble" Sweeney.

Outlined against a blue-gray November sky stood the Four Horsemen — Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. And they did not have names like Crowley, Stuhldreher, Miller and Layden. They had names like Ricky Bell, Vince Evans, Charles White and Vic Jackson. The horses were all Trojans, 17-13, last Saturday.

How come Grantland Rice had all the luck? It was all very well for him to set up there and write poems about Notre Dame touchdown sweeps. What do you write about Notre Dame interceptions? Fumbles? Missed kicks? Outlined against a blue-gray November sky was a guy dropping the ball.

I'D LIKE TO SEE Pat O'Brien making a recording of this one. The lions have begun eating the Christians again. I'm beginning to think the shamrock is just a weed. The Blarney Stone probably says "Made In Japan" on the bottom of it.

Listen! You don't mind losing if you've got the worst team or if Anthony Davis runs for a half-dozen touchdowns or something.

But when you keep marching down the field and someone — or something — keeps reaching up and snatching the ball from you or pushing kicks wide, or making you fall down a yard short and 4 points shy — I mean, whose sides are the leprechauns on?! What in the name of the saints is going on here?!

Doesn't the coach have a sainted mother — or at least a maiden aunt — in traction any more and the doctors hold out no hope for her unless Notre Dame wins?

Rockne would have come to this game on a stretcher and corn starch plastered on his face and a farewell speech on his lips. Hell, he would have had USC crying!

CAN'T NOTRE DAME get Father O'Malley as head linesman any more? USC went to a passing attack in the second half partly because they got tired of being tackled behind the line of scrimmage but also because they found out the officiating crew would call pass interference if someone coughed. They called them indiscriminately for both teams.

When the game started, Notre Dame was meant to be just a kind of community punching bag used to determine who was better — Pittsburgh or USC. The problem very quickly became: who was better — USC or Notre Dame? The jury is still out in spite of the 17-13 score.

The following things happened to the "Irish" on their way to second place:

—In the second quarter, they marched to the USC 32 where on second-and-6, the quarterback threw an interception. The score was 0-0 at the time.

—IN THE SECOND quarter, they marched to the 14-yard-line where their halfback, who was otherwise to gain 115 yards for the day, fumbled on third-and-6.

—In the second quarter, the quarterback fumbled with a first-and-10 on the USC 23-yard-line.

—In the second quarter, the 115-yard halfback who was the first Notre Dame back in history to go over 1,000 yards for a season, couldn't make a yard on the USC 32 where he was stopped with fourth-and-1.

—In the third quarter, with the ball on the 10-yard-line, the placekicker missed a field goal.

MEANWHILE, on the other side of the line of scrimmage, the guys were throwing away two treys and coming up with a full house all day. They were throwing up soap-bubble passes about as desperate as putting a note in a bottle off a sinking ship and turning them into 67-yard touchdowns.

In the fourth quarter, when USC got to the Notre Dame 28-yard-line, thanks to a pass interference call, their placekicker kicked a 46-yard field goal. It was the difference. The overalls were in the chowder once again.

The heathens won again, lads. You can go home and say five Our Fathers and put $2 in the poorbox and take the pledge.

The Irish are going to play in something called the "Gator Bowl" down South where they probably don't even know the Hail Mary. USC gets to play a Michigan team which probably doesn't either. If Michigan loses, we'll probably have to figure God isn't Middle Western either.

As far as Notre Dame is concerned he probably isn't Slovenian or Bavarian or Polish or Italian and his name doesn't end in "i" or "o" or "z" or "ich." Maybe He's from South Pasadena.

CAR CORNER

with George Orth & Roger Nick

Misfiring occurs when one or more spark plugs fail to ignite the cylinder's fuel charge. Mechanics call this a "missing" cylinder or cylinders. The most obvious clue: part of the engine's smooth roar is absent, as if there were a hole in the sound. Misfiring at idling speed causes rough idling. It also tends to occur under two other conditions: at high engine speeds without a heavy load, and under a heavy load. The trouble is usually in the ignition system. Should your car misfire, have it checked as soon as possible.

Have your GM car checked by factory trained technicians at RAY OLDSMOBILE, 501 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge! Our staff is totally committed to giving prompt, satisfactory service, and we have one of the most extensive parts departments in the area. We want your service business regardless of where you bought your car. Stop in and talk with Service Managers George Orth and Roger Nick; they will personally check to make sure you are completely satisfied with our work. Call us at 696-3200 to schedule your car for service. We are open Mondays through Fridays from 7 A.M. until 6 P.M.

HANDY HINT:

Now and then, see that all spark plug cables are firmly seated in their towers of the distributor cap and pushed tightly onto each plug.

Scabs clot wounds, help healing

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Wilma Cooper, 11, of Booneville, Ky., for her question:

HOW DOES AIR FORM A SCAB OVER A WOUND?

Any time the skin is broken, the resulting injury is called an open wound. Abrasions are surface wounds where the skin is scraped off. If you cut your finger with a sharp knife, you suffer an incision.

A laceration is the tearing of the tissue, and puncture wounds are caused by objects which puncture the skin and underlying tissue. Usually these open wounds bleed for a while before the blood clots and a scab begins to form.

Clotting at the surface of an open wound starts as platelets — particles in the blood produced in the bone marrow — pile up in damaged blood vessels. The platelets and the injured tissue of the vessels give off certain chemicals which react with clotting factors in the plasma (the liquid part of blood; to form a substance called thromboplastin. At this point certain inactive blood factors undergo changes to form long, sticky threads of fibrin. This clogs and thickens the blood and slows down the flow from the severed vessels.

As the spongy wad of fibrin thickens, it forms a clot which plugs up the open wound and stops the bleeding. The dryness of the air helps the clot to harden to a scab. This protects the wound during the patient repair work that rebuilds the damaged tissues below the surface.

An open wound should be carefully cleaned and covered for a day or so to keep out germs. Strong antiseptics should be avoided as they may damage the tissues. After a scab has formed it should be allowed to fall off naturally — not be pried off with impatient fingers.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Butch Harper, of Madison, Ala., for his question:

WHY IS THE SUN SOMETIMES SO RED WHEN IT SETS?

You may watch a sunset every evening of your life and never see the same display twice. The western skies may wear golden hues of orange or apricot that later give way to rosy blushes of pink or red. If clouds are present they may add a touch of purple or pearly gray. Actually our razzle-dazzle sun is the same color every day. But we look at it through the gaseous atmosphere that envelops the earth, and this makes all the difference in the world.

A golden sunbeam is a package of invisible light pulsing along at different wave lengths. As it comes down through the atmosphere, some of its wavelengths are bent and scattered to show their hidden colors. During the day, when the sun is more or less overhead, the short wave lengths are bent — coloring the sky blue.

When evening comes, and the sun is lower in the horizon, wee see it through a thicker layer of our atmosphere.

Sims mystifies Jacobys

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Today's hand from that 1930 final match may well be called a mystery hand. The bidding in the box is when Lightner sat South and Culbertson North. It is rather normal bidding and would probably be duplicated in a modern match.

Langdon opened the four of hearts. Dummy's nine forced East's queen. Today, more than 45 years later, Jacoby, who sat East, can't remember how the play went, but it was one of those hands where the conservative Lightner played safe and scored his three notrump.

At the other table, Hal Sims in the North seat rebid two notrump over his partner's one-spade response. Langdon went to three spades, but Sims rebid to three notrump and played it there.

East opened the deuce of clubs and Sims managed to collect 11 tricks.

Where does the mystery come in? Sims was a great dummy player, but neither of us can find any way that he managed to get that 11th trick.

Ten tricks yes. That 11th really must have required some help from the defenders.

A Florida reader wants to know what the rule about revokes is. We will answer part of this today and the rest tomorrow (in Leisure).

A revoke occurs when a player who has a card or cards in a suit that he should play, plays a card in some other suit. It becomes established when he or his partner plays to the next trick. The penalty for a revoke is two tricks, but only including the revoking and later tricks. Thus, you cannot lose a trick previously taken if you revoke.

'Beauty and Beast' gem of a show

by JOHN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — 'Twas beauty killed the beast in "King Kong," and she almost did it again to George C. Scott in the magical television version of "Beauty and the Beast."

The fable will be shown as a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation on NBC today from 7:30 - 9 p.m., and it's a delightful trip to a special fairyland, where the impossible is possible as a matter of survival.

Most of the audience will have read the tale as children — about the beautiful girl who goes to live with an ugly beast for love of her father, and comes to love the beast above all others.

In this version, spectacularly staged in an isolated castle surrounded by wild woods, Scott plays Beast and his real-life wife, Trish Van Devere, certainly is Beauty.

The lavish sets begin to put the viewer in the magical mood for fairyland. Then there's Scott, with the snout and tusks of a boar, with hairy hooves instead of hands, with arched eyebrows curiously ridged as if perhaps horns might sprout.

HE'S JUST BEASTLY enough to prove a shock on first encounter, but he's not without a certain animal charm. Beauty not only calls him Beast, but also Sir Gentle Eyes, and the name fits. If ever an actor could put his heart in his eyes — and his voice — it's Scott.

The performances are excellent — particularly Scott, who puts so much charm and sentiment into Beast that he's more appealing with tusks than without.

"Beauty and the Beast" has magic in its story and staging. Children should love it — no matter how old they are.

HAVE YOU GIVEN ANY THOUGHT TO A TAX-SAVING RETIREMENT?

YOU SHOULD, IF . . .

- If you're not covered by a retirement plan where you now work.
- If you're changing jobs.
- If you're self-employed.

You have until December 31st to open an INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT (IRA). The dollars you put into it now may be deducted from your income tax return for the year. You pay no taxes on your retirement fund until you retire, when your tax bracket will probably be lower and your exemptions higher.

BUT DO IT NOW - BEFORE DECEMBER 31!

MSL's year of field goal?

It's tough to label 1976

by KEITH REINHARD

It seems like every Mid-suburban League football season ends up with a label.

In some instances, the tag stands for a particular player and an outstanding feat, such as 1971 when Forest View's Mike Pryor became the first rusher in conference history to crack the 1,000-yard mark.

By the same token, 1966 was Steve Allen's year. The do-it-all Arlington quarterback led his team to a co-championship in the team's inaugural Mid-Suburban campaign, setting some records that are still listed today.

SOME YEARS have called for more general terms. It was the year of the big rush in '75, with Palatine's Jim Popp establishing a new standard for yards gained on the ground and Schaumburg quarterback Russ Zonca becoming the top all-time total offense leader primarily because of his running talents.

It was the year of the aerial blitz in 1970 as Prospect's Stu White and Conant's John Macdonald battled bomb-for-bomb all season to become the top league thrower . . . and both ended up going over the 1,000-yard mark.

Other years have been identified with particular teams such as 1972 when Elk Grove became the mythical state grid champ or 1973 when Hersey roared to an impressive Super Bowl championship.

And now we have 1976 . . .

THE YEAR OF the great Bicentennial? The year that almost was? The year between '75 and '77?

Statistically speaking, 1976 was not a very good year in the MSL.

The top conference scorer this past fall has been bettered by 26 other players in previous years. Leaders in passing, receiving and total offense also rank well down the line on the MSL's single season honor rolls.

There were scant few game records eclipsed, either individual or team-wise. The new entries among career leaders rank at the bottom in scoring and total offense.

THERE ARE NO new additions on the MSL career passing honor roll.

Possibly the only noteworthy category for the Mid-Suburban in 1976 would be defense. Forest View's defense against the rush (84.6 yards per game) is the 10th best ever recorded in the history of the circuit.

Three teams qualified for the top 10 in all-time pass defense. Arlington's 29.0 yield per contest in the third best ever while Rolling Meadows (39.1) ranks fifth and Hersey (47.9) ranks ninth.

In terms of over-all defense, the Cardinals of '76 join Redbird clubs from 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1972 among the top 10. Arlington's '68 outfit was the league's best ever at a miserly 83.1 yards per outing.

THE CARD counterpart for '76 claims 10th on the all-time total defense ladder with a mark of 154.2.

At the other end of the spectrum, Fremd, passed for only 136 yards in seven games. This topped the 1972 Mustang mark (23.0 per game) at 19.4.

There was only one obvious new entry among the league's top all-time offense teams. The unbeaten 1976 Elk Grove club rushed at a 270.0 tempo, fifth on the all-time list, and posted a 328.4 total offense average, ninth best ever.

Individually and statistically speaking, the most outstanding MSL performer for 1976 was probably Saxon Steve Knudson.

IN LEADING the conference in rushing with 877 yards, the Schaumburg senior produced the fifth best single season effort. And coupled with his 492 yards as a junior, Knudson ranks as the number six man in career rushing.

Knudson also wound up his prep career with 90 total points to tie with Fremd's Bob Moloznik in 12th place on the honor listing.

Only other names added to or improved on the honor rolls this past season were Tim Roberts of Elk Grove; Card Tom North; Buffalo Grove's Ben Orcutt, Scott Groot and John MacIsaac; Gary Adams and Rick Sutton from Meadows; Bill Strawn of Hoffman Estates; and Prospect's Tom Franson and Brad Millar.

Orcutt capped his third year of varsity play by scoring 27 points for 123 total to move into fifth place on the career scoring honor roll. In three seasons he also lugged the ball for a total of 1,423 yards to become the fifth best MSL career rusher.

NORTH, ANOTHER three-year vet, moved up in career receiving departments. North hauled in 50 passes for 959 yards. Those figures rank him sixth and third respectively all-time.

Orcutt pulled in 30 passes for 430 yards. He is now tied for 18th with Forest View's Ray Michaelsen in career receptions and 15th in receiving yardage.

The versatile Bison joined with Knudson and Roberts in moving onto the career total offense honor roll. The same numbers that earned them career rushing honors place Orcutt 19th, Knudson 21st and Roberts 22nd in this select category.

For Roberts, those rushing numbers were 804 and 547 for 1,351. He ranks right behind Knudson in seventh place on the MSL career rushing honor roll.

THE OTHER new single season honor role entries are:

Sutton 21st at 626 yards and Adams 24th at 616 yards in rushing; Franson at 784 yards for 15th and Groot at 745 yards for 21st in passing; Millar 25 catches to tie for 17th and Strawn 23 catches to tie for 22nd in receiving; and MacIsaac 50 points to tie for 27th in scoring.

Groot, meanwhile, earned a less enviable entry in the record books by tossing five interceptions against Hersey during the season. He shares that single game mark with two others.

In the same contest, Husky Joe Pusatera found his way into the book by snaring four of those five interceptions. This one-game standard further substantiates 1976 as a defensive season.

AND THEN there's Bob Schachner of Hersey, who notched a new league season record with five field goals, and Prospect's Frushour, who kicked a record-setting 44-yard field goal against Conant.

So how about '76 as the year of the fab field goal?

Don't be fooled by fancy rustproofing promises.
The "proof" is in the process.
Ziebart because:
Rust can destroy a new car after a couple of years. Undercoating and conventional rustproofing don't do a complete job. Ziebart does.
Ziebart because:
We use 9 patented tools to get inside your new car's body and spray every inch of rust-prone metal with our unique sealant. To make it really rustproof. And soundproof. And worth more money when you decide to sell it.
Ziebart because:
You may want to keep your new car for a couple of years or longer.
There's only one Ziebart rustproofing process. And there's only one place to get it. From us.

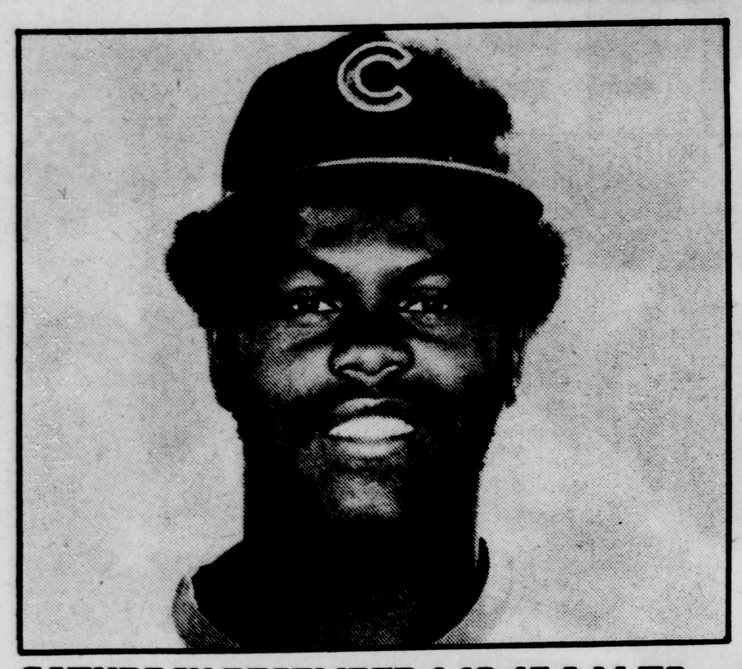
OPEN SUNDAY

WE'RE HAVING A GRAND OPENING AND A CHRISTMAS PARTY. AND YOU'RE INVITED.

After three years in our temporary quarters, First Federal is celebrating the opening of a beautiful new office on Rand Road in Mount Prospect. And what a perfect season to have a celebration.
Our ribbon cutting will be at 11:00 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 1st.
Santa Claus heads up the festivities, but there'll be sports stars, contests, gifts and refreshments for everyone from December 1st right through Christmas Eve.



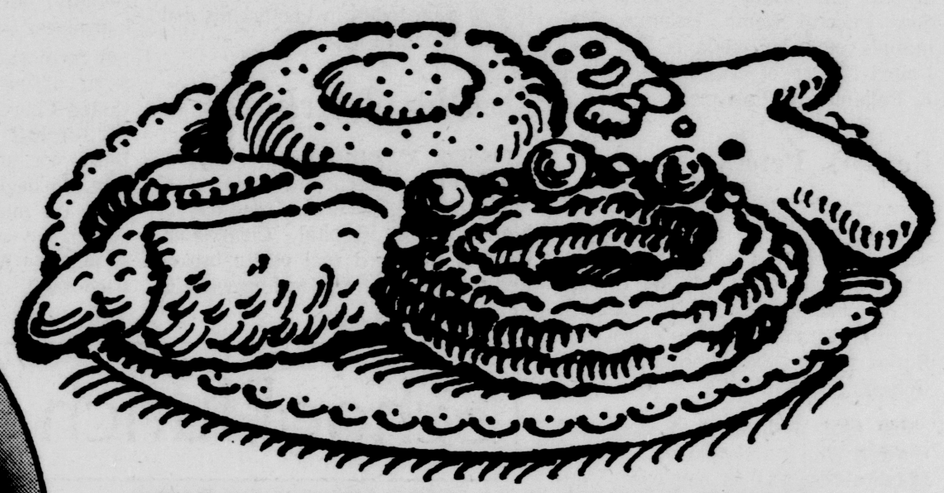
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 10:45 A.M. TO 12:45 P.M. What does Bill Madlock do when he's not winning batting titles for the Chicago Cubs? Ask him. He'll be at the party to talk with you and sign autographs. And to draw the winners for 5 autographed baseballs.

To find out what Santa really looks like, we're going to ask the experts—your kids. For the best drawings of "Santa and His Reindeer," we're giving away First Federal savings accounts. Entries accepted from December 1 to December 18.

ALSO ON DECEMBER 18, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Meet First Federal's man of the season—Santa Claus. He may not be signing autographs, but chances are good your kids will want to talk to him anyway.

Here's a touch of Christmas spirit for you. Your choice of a beautiful Christmas centerpiece of artificial fir and dried flowers, accented with a bright red candle and bow, or an arrangement of dried baby's breath and pinecones in a handsome wicker basket. Either one is free with a deposit of $250 or more in a new or existing savings account at our Mount Prospect office only.*

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Is Eric Nesterenko as tough in person as he was on skates for the Black Hawks? Meet him, get his autograph and find out. There'll also be a drawing for five pairs of Black Hawks tickets.



FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 6:00 TO 8:00 P.M. Who bakes the best cookies, cakes and pastries in the northwest suburbs? Enter our Christmas Baking Contest, and we'll decide. Winners will each receive a $50 First Federal Savings Account, or a free cookbook. (For details, stop by the Mount Prospect Branch.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 11:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Bob Avellini usually finds himself face-to-face with 270-pound tackles who want to knock him down. So he'll be glad to meet friendly people like you who only want his autograph. He'll also draw the winners for 5 autographed footballs.

DECEMBER 20 TO DECEMBER 24. Christmas without Christmas carols is unthinkable. So we've scheduled five days of caroling as a fitting conclusion to our grand opening festivities.

*Offer good at our Mount Prospect office only December 1-24. Supply is limited; one gift per family. Sorry, no mail orders. Offer may be modified or cancelled without notice.

Carter reforms may fall victim to slow economy

by MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When he takes office, Jimmy Carter may be tempted to say what John F. Kennedy said May 27, 1961 — four months after he assumed the presidency.

"When we got into office, the thing that surprised me most was to find that things were just as bad as we'd been saying they were."

Carter is likely to find the economy is not just as bad as he had said, but worse. He is likely to act within his first few weeks in office to engage in some old-fashioned Democratic economic pump-priming.

Carter won office on the promise — or, as he calls it, the "campaign commitment" — to make economic conditions better. "And you can depend on that," he said countless times.

IN THE AREAS OF employment, inflation, tax reform and the budget, the President-elect made specific pledges.

• On inflation he said his goal was a rate of "4 per cent or less" by the end of his first term.

He favors reinstituting voluntary wage-price guidelines which kept inflation rates low for a time in the Kennedy-Johnson years.

• On unemployment, he often said, "The No. 1 priority is jobs."

After some hesitation, he endorsed the goals of the full employment legislation known as the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

That bill is intended to provide work for all who want work. It would do that through government economic planning, stimulation of the private sector and providing government jobs for those who cannot find jobs elsewhere.

• On tax reform, Carter promised to revise a tax system that is "a disgrace to the human race."

He said he could not spell out his proposals until he had been in office a year.

But he did say tax reform would not increase taxes for those whose earnings come entirely from wages and salaries. His thinking seemed to be to tax the rich somewhat more and the poor somewhat less by eliminating "loopholes" mostly used by the rich.

• On the budget, Carter set two goals, both conservative in nature.

One is to eliminate budget deficits by his fourth year in office.

The other is to hold government spending to about 21 per cent of the Gross National Product — the total value of all goods and services the economy produces in a year.

Government spending has been purposefully increased recently to combat the recession, and has been running about 23 per cent of the GNP.

Those are all long-term projects, however. Over the short haul, Carter may have to deal at once with a stagnating economy.

He said after his election he will propose a tax cut if the current "pause" or "lull" in the economy has extended through the final three months of 1976.

WHILE FEW if any economists foresee another recession (a period of zero economic growth), the "pause," which started last spring has lasted longer than anticipated by Ford administration economists, who initially welcomed it as healthy.

The purpose of a tax cut is to stimulate consumer spending and reduce big business inventories that have led, in some industries, to a new round of layoffs.

If the October-November-December economic statistics convince Carter to cut taxes, his advisers may suggest a one-time tax rebate designed to put more money in the wallets of low and middle-income families, with the largest rebates going to the biggest families.

Prof. Lawrence Klein of the University of Pennsylvania, Carter's chief economic adviser during the campaign, champions the rebate approach.

Rebates ranging from $5 billion to $15 billion are being discussed.

But some economists think returning that amount to consumers barely will influence a $1.7 trillion-a-year economy. They argue for further stimulation through stepped-up government spending, especially for government jobs programs.

ON THE OTHER side, Arthur Burns, the conservative economist who heads the Federal Reserve Board, is concerned about over-stimulation.

"Traditional policies of economic stimulation might well be counter-productive," Burns has said. "Fears of inflation would intensify and the seeds of another recession may be sown."

Two more factors cloud the immediate picture.

The government has spent at least $11.4 billion less this year than was budgeted.

This lost spending is a mystery. Experts don't know if it merely reflects delays in spending which ultimately will take place or if the money will never be spent. It is clear the removal of that much government stimulus crimps the economy.

The threat of another price rise by the members of the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in December is another worry.

An increase could range anywhere from 5 to 40 per cent. OPEC's fourfold increase helped touch off the 1973-75 recession. Carter says he hopes OPEC shows "great restraint."

THE HEALTH of the U.S. economy affects the world. A weak recovery might undermine Carter's foreign policies.

Unemployment was 7.9 per cent in October — up from the 7.3 per cent level last May. During the Kennedy administration, it dropped to as low as 3 per cent.

To combat inflation, Carter intends to bring back "jawboning" — presidential efforts to persuade industrialists and labor leaders to exercise voluntary restraint. Kennedy jawboned; so did Lyndon Johnson.

The president-elect also plans to reinstitute wage-price guidelines. In the Kennedy-Johnson era, guidelines helped hold price and wage increases to an average of 3.2 per cent, roughly equal to productivity increases, permitting a theoretically inflationary rate of zero.
